Truman Move Hints Steel Pact

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP) — Official Washington confidently expected a steel strike settlement today as a swift follow-up to President Truman's higher wage-price line and his choice of Chester Bowles to hold it. Providing price increases for industry to cover government-approved wage hikes, the new reconversion formula, a White House spokesman said, supplies the basis for ending the walkout of 750,000 CIO-United Steelworkers.

Other high officials said approval of a steel price boost of approximately $5 a ton would be a factor in the settlement.

Aides said that when Mr. Truman turned loose the long-awaited policy change late last night he also had counted on making a simultaneous announcement that the steel strike was over. However, he was disappointed by the U. S. Steel and CIO negotiators, who were reported close to agreement in a late session, but still short of bridging the final gap.

The President said the new policy was designed to cope with a reconversion situation in which "vitally needed production is lagging" and collective bargaining "has broken down" in many key industries.

It calls for these broad changes in the nation's approach to the wage-price question:

1—Wage increases must be approved by the National Wage Stabilization Board. And this board must see that they do not exceed the pattern of pay boosts in an industry or area since V-J Day—about 16 to 18 per cent.

2—Higher price ceiling will be granted manufacturers immediately—instead of after six months—to insure profitable operation after an approved wage increase is granted.

3—OPA Administrator Bowles becomes director of the recreated Office of Economic Stabilization and is charged with laying down the specific rules for the new policy.

4—Paul A. Porter, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission and a staunch hold-the-line man, steps into Bowles' OPA shoes.

5—The wartime OES is revived to replace the Office of Stabilization Administrator previously headed by John C. Collet. As its boss Bowles had wider authority than Collet but still is in the office—and under the supervision—of Reconversion Director John W. Snyder, with whom he tangled on pricing policy. Collet plans to return to his Missouri federal judgeship.

To cap this denouement of a month-long drama of conflict among subordinates, the President appealed for firm holding of the new and higher line to avoid "the misery and danger of inflation."

"I call upon both management and labor to proceed with production," Mr. Truman said in a statement.

American Federation of Labor President William Green described the new policy as "unsatisfactory, unacceptable and "a backward step." He added:

"It will only serve to increase confusion and multiply the nation's troubles . . . It restablishes wage fixing by government and strikes a body blow at free collective bargaining . . . The new policy is no solution."

CIO President Philip Murray made no immediate comment.

F. D. Got War Tip on Pearl Harbor Eve

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP)—A young naval officer testified today the night before Pearl Harbor he handed President Roosevelt information which prompted the President to exclaim "this means war."

The statement came from Com. L. R. Schulz, who told the Senate-House committee investigating the Dec. 7, 1941, disaster he was at the time on duty in the White House.

Schulz said Harry Hopkins was with the President at the time and Hopkins remarked since war appeared imminent it was "too bad we couldn't strike the first blow and prevent surprise."

Roosevelt replied, Shulz said, "No, we cannot do that. We are a democracy and a peaceful people."

Shulz said there was no mention of Pearl Harbor. He said the "only geographic name I recall being mentioned was Indo-China" and that there was "no indication tomorrow was necessarily the day."

Russia Backs Levant, Flays Britain, France

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP)—Russia threw her support to the Levant states in the United Nations Security Council today, declaring their sovereignty had been "clearly violated" in the occupation by British and French troops.

Vice Commissar Andrei Vishinsky told the council a French proposal to permit Britain and France to work out an agreement on withdrawal of forces from Syria and Lebanon "cannot satisfy the Soviet Union."

BULLETIN

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP)—Mamdouh Riaz of Egypt declared during a Security Council session tonight if 46 nations are going to follow the five principal powers "we might as well liquidate" the United Nations.

Vishinsky spoke after the United States suggested the Levant states settle their complaint by direct negotiation.

U. S. Representative Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., added, however, if this decision were approved it should be made clear the council has "continuing concern in the matter and would receive progress reports on the negotiations."

"The United States government policy," he said, "is to encourage the withdrawal of foreign troops from all Allied territory."

Lebanon accused Britain and France of a "grave attack on the sovereignty" of the Levantine states, and demanded "immediate and simultaneous evacuation" of foreign troops.

Rose Carlan Freed In Death of Baby

Mrs. Rose Carlan, 23-year-old Chelsea mother, today was exonerated by the Suffolk County grand jury of a manslaughter charge in the death of her infant son, Ronnie, whose body was found at home after she told police he had been kidnaped.

Exonerated

The jury reported to Judge Nelson P. Brown after hearing 26 witnesses during a three-day session. Among those who testified were members of her family, State and Chelsea police, neighbors and Medical Examiner William J. Brickley.

MRS. ROSE CARLAN
Manslaughter Charge Not Pressed Against Chelsea Wife

Mrs. Carlan has been at liberty under $2500 bond since Judge John W. MacLeod in Chelsea court ordered her held for the grand jury. Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle, who presented the case to the jurors, said legal formalities would be completed without Mrs. Carlan returning to court.

The jury's action climaxed one of the most bizarre kidnap hoaxes in Massachusetts history. Mrs. Carlan reported her child missing on Nov. 28 and police throughout the East began a search for the infant.

While the needless hunt was under way, Gov. Tobin and Archbishop Cushing joined with other civic leaders in an appeal to the "kidnapers" to return the child. Mrs. Carlan herself delivered a touching radio appeal and gave instructions on the care of the infant.

The baby's father, MM 2c James J. Carlan, awaiting shipment to Japan, was recalled on emergency furlough from Oakland, Cal., so he might join in the search. He has since been discharged from the Navy.

Rewards totaling $4250 were offered for information leading to Ronnie's return. The State Police and FBI entered the case early in December and probed fake ransom demands made by a 14-year-old Springfield girl.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Carlan was under relentless questioning, but maintained her composure throughout. It was not until police found Ronnie's body in the Carlan home on Dec. 14 that she "broke" and admitted her story was fiction, thought up to avoid suspicion of having neglected the child.

Lowell Girl Tells Of Slaying Sailor

Learning today for the first time their daughter, Bridget Theresa Gray, 19, was being held in Ogden, Utah, on a charge of murder in the death of a sailor friend, Mr. and Mrs. Luke Gray, Elliot st., Lowell, declared today they would stand by her. "She always was a good girl," said Mrs. Jennie Gray. "She's been away about a year but she wrote to us and sent us Christmas presents. The last letter we got from her was in January and we've been wondering why we hadn't heard from her since then."

The parents said they would do everything possible to help their daughter but explained they had no money to finance a trip to Utah to be with her. The former Lowell girl was arrested Feb. 6 after a lovers' quarrel in an Ogden night club was climaxed by the fatal stabbing of Seaman Gale L. Morris of Camp Point, Ill.

Bridget Gray

State Sen. Ira Huggins, one of Utah's leading criminal attorneys, has been assigned to defend her.

It was not until yesterday, however, the girl, who will be given a preliminary hearing next Tuesday, made known from her cell in the Ogden jail her identity and background, which she had kept secret since her arrest.

The Lowell girl said she had not yet entered a plea to the charge of murder. The victim died of a heart stab wound in full view of more than a score of patrons of the Ogden United Nations Club. Morris was stationed at the Ogden Naval Base, which adjoins the Ogden Naval Arsenal where Bridget went to work a year ago after leaving her Lowell home.

Bridget, who said she attended St. Peter's School, St. Michael's School and the Varnum School in Lowell, asserted she acted in self-defense when her boy friend attacked her for being in the night club with two men.

When he struck her she seized

In a long distance telephone interview, Bridget said:

"I met him in a dance hall. It was a case of love at first sight. I knew he was my man when I first saw him. He's the only one I ever loved or went steady with.

"On the night this awful thing happened, about 9:10 o'clock, I walked into the United Nations Night Club on Kiesel ave. I was with two other fellows that I didn't know very well, and there was a big crowd in there. While we were having a drink I discovered he was there.

"He came over to me and started yelling to me about being out with somebody else. Then he struck me. The other two fellows turned and ran like scared ducks and I haven't seen them since. I grabbed a small knife which was there and as he lunged at me I pointed it at him and he collapsed. Then I was arrested and here I am."

The parents were told "Corkey" is as healthy as can be expected and advised he be taken home

Pius Thankful to U. S. He Tells Abp. Spellman

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 15—Abp. Francis J. Spellman of New York, a cardinal-designate, emerged from a half-hour audience with Pope Pius XII today and said the Pontiff had expressed appreciation of United States efforts to help hungry Europe.

"The Pope thanked the people of the United States and the archdiocese of New York for all they had done," Apb. Spellman said.

"I remarked to His Holiness that all we could do was inadequate to meet the need. Admitting that, the Pope nevertheless stressed how important it had been to the unfortunate of Europe, especially the children."

The archbishop during the morning said mass at St. Peter's Basilica.

Abp. Spellman is a friend of long standing of the Pontiff. He commented "the Pope's color is better" than when they last met.

He said the Pope asked about his trip and "expressed satisfaction that it was pleasant."

He also said the Pope was "pleased to receive greetings from the people of New York, which I gave him, and blessed the archdiocese of New York."

After Abp. Spellman had spent a few minutes alone with the Pope, he took in Msgr. Edward J. Quinn of Cincinnati, who studied with Abp. Spellman at the American College in Rome, was ordained with him and attended his consecration as a bishop.

Msgr. Quinn today handed the Pope a check as an offering from the school.

It was at St. Peter's where Archbishop Spellman said mass that he first read the service when he was ordained a bishop.

POPE PIUS XII
Thanks U. S. for Aid to Needy

He plans to say mass at St. Paul's, outside the Vatican walls, tomorrow. That was where he said his second mass as a bishop.

He had planned to say today's mass at 8:30, but upon the party's arrival, the altar was in use. All knelt in prayer for half an hour until their time came, and by coincidence next to them were two Italian prisoners of war just returned from the United States.

One, Anthony Giancotti, whose aunt lives in New York city, said:

"I didn't know it was the archbishop when he knelt down, but I was impressed by his meditation. He really is an impressively pious man. This has been a great honor that I never shall forget."

Far Below Lay Rome Clad in Amber Glow

By AUSTEN LAKE
Boston Evening American Staff Writer

ROME, Feb. 15—The Eternal City lay in amber sunshine as our plane banked around the southern walls and skirted the egg-shaped dome of St. Peter's. It was like hovering over a miniature model. There were the time-stained Colosseum, Trajan's circular tomb, the jumble of the ancient Forum; the Capitoline Hill and the historic temples of early Christian faith.

Austen Lake

Behind us somewhere in the cloudless sky, Archbishop Spellman's plane was following as we settled toward the Campagna of Roman countryside which slopes from the distant Apennine mountains. We scudded down onto Ciampino field, 4672 flying miles from home, in approximately 17 flying hours. It seemed incredible that we had come so far and seen so much in so short a time.

This was an Army airport, run on stiff military lines, where a skirmish line of club-toting MPs held back a mixed crowd of prelates, monsignori, students, priests, soldiers and press.

There was no confusion, no sudden stampede of crowds, as the Star of Rome appeared in the late afternoon sunlight, shining exactly as it was named. Its silvered wings reflecting like bright meteors, the plane, largest ever to land at this field, scudded to a stop.

The GI ground crew rolled out a portable ramp. The three cardinals-elect appeared in the open hatch and were escorted by debarkation officers to an appointed spot. It was all prim and precise. I much preferred the impulsive rush of the Irish throngs at Rineanna and Limerick. So, I think, did Archbishop Spellman.

So three cardinals-elect reached Rome on the most significant errand of their lives. It was 6 p. m. as their motor procession filed along Via Nomentana, through the newer end of town, where large and neat apartment buildings resemble upper Commonwealth ave. But always interspersed in this modernity were ruins of ancient aqueducts and state shrines, toward which I could see Archbishop Spellman incline his head as one who eagerly recognizes beloved landmarks.

The official party went on to the Grand Hotel in the Piazza della Terme, just below the palace of

Van and Winnie in Chat, Actor Gets Autograph

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 15 (AP)—A cold spell which sent the mercury to 51 at 7:30 a. m. kept Winston Churchill indoors today and prompted him to forego his favorite pastime of basking in the sun at a Beach Cabana club.

Yesterday the British war leader exchanged pleasantries with Van Johnson, the pink-haired "swoon boy" of America's bobby-soxers, at the seaside.

"Mrs. Churchill and I have enjoyed you in the talking pictures," said Churchill.

"That makes me very happy," Johnson replied, and then, a bit nervously, added: "I am going to request the autograph of my favorite statesman."

Churchill nodded. "I hope your arm holds out as long as mine has," he chuckled, scrawling his signature on the page of a notebook.

60 Lumber Handlers Join Warehouse Strike

Walking out in sympathy with striking Boston warehousemen, 60 lumber handlers at Wiggins Terminal, Charlestown, today tied up shipments to Britain and domestic points as the five-day-old waterfront wage dispute remained deadlocked.

Sherman Whipple, Jr., president of Wiggins, one of the largest lumber terminals in the nation, said the strike of the lumber handlers threw more than 100 longshoremen out of work.

He said work on loading a ship destined for England was stopped and incoming ships would be diverted until the walkout ended.

"Our lumber handlers have no grievance and this strike was called by the union heads without any vote by the men," Whipple declared.

He said more than 10,000,000 feet of lumber were in the terminal ready for shipment.

Daniel Donovan, international vice-president of the International Longshoremen's Ass'n, said the lumbermen's walkout also forced maintenance men off their jobs in addition to longshoremen.

He said Navy trucks were being allowed to enter and leave the strike-bound terminals with emergency supplies. No request to cross picket lines had been made by the Army, he said.

The First Naval District, in a formal statement, said "no complications were foreseen in providing a sufficient food supply for naval activities."

Donovan said longshoremen are not involved in the dispute affecting 700 warehousemen "and they're not going to be." He admitted some were thrown out of work but only because the strikes involved men who ordinarily moved materials the longshoremen handled.

Meanwhile, the trucking dispute remained deadlocked pending outcome of a meeting of the employers' committee in the City Club tonight. The group will consider the recommendation of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration that the problem be submitted to arbitration.

Rumors that the 4500 drivers planned to strike Tuesday were emphatically denied today by a union spokesman. He said the men had voted unanimously to arbitrate the dispute and were awaiting decision of the employers.

The union representative said the drivers agreed to use every means possible to settle without striking. He said he expected another meeting with employers before the State Conciliation Board next week.

An attempt to avert a threatened strike at 21 Greater Boston cleaning and dyeing plants was scheduled for today by State Labor Comr. James T. Moriarty.

Ball Broke 4 Bones, Woman Says in Suit

Taking the stand in Suffolk Superior Court today in her $25,000 damage suit against the Boston Red Sox, Mrs. Lillian Shaw, Clyde st., Brookline, testified she suffered fractures of four facial bones when struck by a foul ball at Fenway Park, April 26, 1942.

The ball, she said, came winging into first base box from the bat of "Buddy" Rosar, New York Yankee catcher, in the fifth inning of the Sunday game.

She also suffered from nosebleed and glass in her eyes from sun glasses which were broken by the ball, she testified.

She said she and her husband, Robert Shaw, well known church architect, attended the game with the late Mayor John H. Corcoran, of Cambridge, and Mrs. Corcoran.

She said she was unable to get out of the way of the ball because of the crowded condition of the box. After their party was seated, she testified, an usher approached and placed two extra seats in the box.

Dr. Varastad Kazanjian, plastic surgeon, testified he had performed facial surgery on Mrs. Shaw as a result of the injury.

In addition to her $25,000 suit, her husband has filed a $5000 suit to recover medical expenses.

The case is continuing.

These Days

A 'Must' Investigation

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1946, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

GEORGE SELDES publishes a queer little sheet called "In Fact." It is devoted to the smearings of the opponents of Communism and the critics of Soviet Russia.

I have been highly honored by occasional, if untruthful, mention in its columns—I regarding it a mark of distinction to be included in Mr. Seldes' antagonisms.

"In Fact" spreads over the country and not being distinctively labelled, gains credence among those who believe the printed word no matter who prints it and for what purpose.

So, here is a paragraph from "In Fact," the issue of January 21, reprinted in the Congressional Record for February 8, P. 1208:

"Although the Benton directives are marked 'secret' and 'confidential' there are hundreds of State Department employes, the majority from OWI and OIAA (the former Rockefeller agency), who subscribe to the belief that they are American citizens first and State Department employes second. Unless the State Department sets up a United States Gestapo to intimidate its employes into silence, the secret and confidential directives will continue to reach the light."

In other words, there are spies for various pressure groups, native and alien, in the State Department, and those who were transferred from the OWI and the OIAA constitute, according to Mr. Seldes, a heavy contribution. No one has ever denounced the OWI and OIAA more vehemently than Seldes does in the above statement.

IN THE DISORGANIZATION confusions of administration during the Roosevelt and Truman regimes, the underlings often constitute themselves a pressure group upon those who are charged with authority and responsibility.

The function of disclosing "secret and confidential directives" can only be the responsibility of the chief: in the State Department, Messrs. Hull, Stettinius and Byrnes; in the OWI, Elmer Davis; in the OIAA, Nelson Rockefeller.

If the clerks down the line are able to release whatever they choose to make public to special interests or preferred outlets, it is not only a mark of inefficiency but an offense under the law.

If a clerk, by whatever title, succeeds in keeping his position after he has betrayed his country, then the Administration has become an anarchy.

Gen. Hurley contended that "secret and confidential" data in his office in China was disclosed to the Chinese Communists and therefore to Soviet Russia.

By any rule of order, only the President and the Secretary of State enjoy the privilege of disclosing "confidential and secret" information to a foreign country.

In Soviet Russia, the defense for the murderous purges was that unauthorized persons were trafficking with foreign powers and they were killed for it. In the United States, they seem to get promotions.

MR. SELDES has provided a basis for a full-dress Congressional investigation of the most serious nature into the corruptions and disorganization of the State Department, the OWI and the OIAA.

And the Army might well be included, because there is ample evidence that some of the orientation courses issued to our troops were designed to undermine their loyalty to the character and traditions of the American way of life and to stimulate an interest in and an admiration for Communism.

Furthermore, it is becoming increasingly clear that much of the implementation of the brutal Morgenthau plan is resulting in an accentuation of disgust and even hatred for the United States in Central Europe, a condition that benefits Soviet Russia which by comparison is gentler in its treatment of the former enemy.

For instance, I was told the story of a Russian general and an American major who were together in some matter with a German officer.

When the German saluted, the Russian returned the normal acknowledgement of recognition; the American withheld his hand.

The Russian general reprimanded the American major for his incivility and lack of chivalry.

The American explained that he was obeying orders.

ALL THIS needs looking into, and George Seldes should be given a Legion of Merit for disclosing the Communist pipe-lines into government departments.

It is essential, in the interest of national security, that his lead be followed so that the full story may reach the light.

Only Congress can do that adequately.

Curley Lashes City's Collapse

"The city treasury is empty, taxes are high, and the fire department has gone to hell as far as I can see," declared Mayor Curley today in a scathing denunciation of his predecessors.

His blast at previous administrations came during a conference with a committee from the Boston local of International Firefighters Ass'n which urged him to approve a 70-hour week for firemen.

"I've got to veto this council order for a 70-hour week now because we just can't afford it this year," he declared. "I'm heartily in favor of cutting your working hours but we simply haven't got the money to do it."

"We really ought to put the red flag over City Hall and sell it to the Indians to pay the city's debts. I don't know what has been done in the past eight years but everything is falling apart.

"The city is in a state of collapse but I am not responsible for it. What we've got to do now is to put it back on its feet."

The mayor reiterated his resolve to attempt to lower the $42.50 tax rate, adding "I'm going to lower it if possible."

"I'm going to cut every department to the bone in trying to get below this year's rate," he said. "The tax has got to be lowered or we won't have any business left here."

Curley said $1,000,000 was required to repair fire houses and $1,500,000 for "urgently needed" new apparatus. He said some fire houses had floors so weak they could not sustain the engines.

"If new fire houses have to be built, they will have to wait until more prosperous times. My predecessors really left me a beautiful heritage," he declared.

Fire Comr. Russell Codman revealed that 80 military substitutes must be dismissed within two weeks and replaced by men from the permanent Civil Service list. He said the change was ordered by the State Civil Service Commission.

Stirling Hayden Cited for Aid To Tito Forces

Stirling Hayden, handsome blond movie star and former Gloucester fisherman, has been awarded the Order of Merit to the People by Yugoslavia for his part in getting war materials across the Adriatic sea to Marshal Tito's forces, the Associated Press in Washington disclosed today.

Stirling Hayden

The Yugoslav embassy said the award was made on the direct recommendation of Tito, leader of the Partisan unit.

Under his real name of John Hamilton, he served as a Marine Corps lieutenant and was skipper of a small boat which eluded the Nazis on several occasions to get supplies to Tito.

To accomplish the daring feat, Hayden disguised himself as a native fisherman. He also parachuted behind enemy lines several times and once injured his back in a landing.

Hayden now is in Reno, preparatory to divorcing Madeleine Carroll, his movie actress wife. He signed a long term contract with Paramount shortly after his return to civilian life.

2 Runaway Boys Seized With $40,000

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Feb. 15 (AP)—Two 15-year-old Chicago high school boys were on their way back home today after leaving there with nearly $40,000, because, the father of one of them said, his son had "a burning ambition to be a newspaper man."

The boys, Neil Ruzic and Howard Erdman, were stopped in a Champaign bus station while carrying the money in a suitcase.

Dr. Joseph Ruzic, dentist, arrived this morning and took both boys and the money which police said totaled $39,694.24. He said no charges would be placed.

Ruzic said the boys took the money from a piano in his home and "it represented his savings from 20 years of dental practice."

He said his son, a press service part-time copy boy and sports editor of the St. Rita High School paper, "wanted to be a newspaper reporter so badly he took it upon himself to leave home with the money."

Police Sgt. Louis Frizzell of Champaign said young Ruzic told him they bought an automobile for $160 and started for California. When the car slipped off the road they hitchhiked to Chicago Heights, and took a bus to Champaign.

Peabody Sisters Missing 2d Day

Missing from their home since yesterday, two attractive South Peabody sisters, Alma Hazel, 19, and Leona, 17, were sought by state and Peabody police today at the request of their father, Leroy Hazel, a grocer.

Hazel told police his daughters have never been out later than 10 p. m. Both girls have brown eyes and light brown hair. Alma is 5 ft. 7 in. tall and weighs 112 pounds. Leona is an inch shorter and weighs two pounds less.

Alma is a student at a Boston secretarial school and Leona is a student at the Essex County Agricultural School in Middleton.

Doctor's Wife Guilty Of Narcotics Charge

Mrs. Florence N. Marchand, 43, of Lafayette st., Salem, a former public health nurse and wife of Dr. Jean Marchand, was found guilty today in municipal court of falsely procuring narcotics and was sentenced to three months in jail. She appealed.

Judge Davis B. Keniston held her in $500. A federal narcotics agent and Special Officer Arthur Blood testified she feigned illness at a Boston hotel in obtaining a prescription. She gave a false address in Jamaica Plain.

CANADA FORD PLANT SHUT

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 15 (INS)—The Ford Motor Co. of Canada, employing 8000, will close its Windsor plants tonight at midnight because of the steel shortage.

Dad Prefers Jail To Baby-Play Ban

A young West End father insisted in Municipal Court today he would prefer to go to jail if he could not play with his 8-months-old son, Francis, when the infant is awake.

Judge Zottoli, however, gave Frank Cascio, Chambers st., a suspended sentence of three months and placed him on probation for six months after he had been found guilty of assault and battery on his wife, Camile.

During the trial the chubby little youngster sat on his grandmother's lap in the back of the courtroom, oblivious of the domestic quarrel aired by his parents.

Mrs. Cascio told the court her husband had kicked and throttled her last Sunday when she told him to stop playing with the baby.

Cascio spoke up and said:

"It wasn't that. I didn't want you to spank this baby."

Mrs. Cascio answering her husband and addressing the court said:

"Why can't I spank him. I brought the child into the world."

The mother then asked the court if she did not have the right to spank her own child. The judge turned to Cascio and told him he should not have choked his wife, regardless of a difference of opinion in the manner in which the child was to be handled.

Cascio insisted he should have the privilege of taking direct action when his wife spanked the child. He also said he wanted to play with the baby and if that was denied he would rather go to jail than accept the suspended sentence.

Judge Zottoli prevailed on him to take probation and told him to come to the court in the future if he felt his rights concerning the baby were being taken away from him.

Loan Interest Cut Favored

A bill to reduce the interest rate on small loans from 3 per cent to 2 per cent a month was reported favorably today by the legislative committee on banks and banking. Lone dissenter was Sen. Donald W. Nicholson of Wareham.

The committee heard four bills earlier in the week and announced it would draft its own measure, embodying the 1 per cent a month reduction.

Bills were filed this year by Reps. Patrick McDonough of South Boston, Edward A. Hutchinson, Jr., of Dorchester; Frederick Pierce of Greenfield and Robert F. Murphy of Malden.

Rep. McDonough told the committee similar measures had been passed by the House for the last three years, but had been defeated in the Senate, last year by one vote.

All four sponsors declared they were confident the bill would hurdle Senate opposition this year.

Tax Convictions of 2 Wool Dealers Upheld

Federal court conviction of Eli Yoffe, 48, Wallis rd., Brookline, and William S. Krasnow, 46, Woodchester rd., Newton, found guilty on charges of conspiring to evade personal income and excess profits taxes, today was upheld in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The convictions were in connection with business in the Yoffe-Krasnow, Inc., wool dealers.

The government had charged that in 1934, 1935 and 1936 Yoffe understated an income of $62,067.52, while Krasnow failed to report an income of $52,978.64.

Dorchester Man Held in Shooting

Joseph Trolia, 23, Greenwich st., Dorchester, was indicted by a Suffolk County grand jury today on a charge of assault with intent to murder Joseph Barresi, 35, Chelsea st., East Boston, critically wounded last Sept. 4 in an East Boston cafe.

Trolia was arraigned immediately before Suffolk Superior Court Judge Brown, pleaded not guilty and was held for trial in $25,000 bail.

Barresi has been under police guard at City Hospital ever since the shooting, save for a wheel chair trip to testify before the grand jury. A bullet lodged in his spine and doctors declare he never will have the use of his legs.

Graf Spee Crew Deported

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 15 (AP)—More than 800 sailors from the scuttled German pocket battleship Graf Spee today were placed aboard the British liner Highland Monarch for deportation.

They have been in Argentina since December, 1939, when the warship was scuttled outside to avoid capture by three British cruisers who had defeated her in one of the great naval engagements of the Atlantic.

The British cruiser Ajax, one of the victors over the Graf Spee, will escort the Highland Monarch and reinforce its prisoners' guard. Some marines from the Ajax already are aboard the liner.

Conman Hall Had a System But Worked Gag Too Often

"A fellow who is able to devise a system like that is better out of circulation" Judge Shamon commented today in Municipal Court after listening to the rigamarole resorted to by Albert A. Hall, 54, Eastport, Me., in mulct-business officials. He was given one year.

Detective Paul Crowley told the court Hall had worked as a riveter at the Bath Iron Works and had noted the names of various concerns supplying the ship building firm with office equipment.

Several months ago, according to Crowley, Hall came to Boston and set up his system. He would first call a vice-president or general manager and after identifying himself as an official of the Bath Iron Works would tell the unsuspecting business man a representative of the firm would call for the purpose of placing another order.

Then, Crowley testified, Hall would show up, talk with the official and discuss the "order." During the interview Hall would make an excuse to leave the office and later when he picked up his overcoat to leave would "discover" his wallet was gone, the detective said.

The business man, anxious to keep his customer in a happy frame of mind would give Hall $10 or $20 or $30, Crowley said.

'Big 3' Artist Keeps Secret

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 15 (AP)—Douglas Chandor, British-born Texas portrait painter, today made a mystery as to who commissioned him to paint the "Big Three."

Hard at work on a preliminary sketch of Winston Churchill at the Surf Club, Chandor sent word through his wife "all information will have to come from President Truman."

Mrs. Chandor said Churchill had suggested the finished canvas of himself, President Roosevelt and Stalin be entitled "Conversation Piece."

The canvas, depicting the three great war leaders at the Yalta conference, will be hung in the capitol in Washington.

Violent Earthquake Rocks Oregon-to-Canada Area

SEATTLE, Feb. 15 (AP)—An earthquake, so intense it caused many persons to believe an atomic bomb plant had exploded, shook the area from northern Oregon to Canada last night. It caused some property damage.

Only a few minor injuries were reported as ground tremors were felt over a 120,000 square mile area. Felt for about a minute in downtown Seattle, the quake continued to record on the University of Washington seismograph for 20 minutes.

Geology Prof. G. E. Goodspeed said the needle jumped from its drum and he termed it the worst quake ever recorded here.

H. W. Locke, a suburban justice of the peace, was officiating at a wedding when the quake started.

"The bride grew pale and tears started to roll down her cheeks as the building shook," said Justice Locke.

"I said, "Keep calm, keep calm, there is nothing to worry about. We finished the ceremony."

The surface of Seattle's Lake Union "bubbled and boiled," immediately after the temblor.

Residents of Seattle's southside reported the quake was accompanied by "a blinding flash," apparently the glare from two short-circuited 26,000-volt power lines.

Kuriles Pact Shows FD Ignored Senate

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

Special to Boston American

Washington, Feb. 15—The more the official text of the Kuriles agreement with Stalin is studied the more impregnable and immutable it appears. The only alternative for the United States must be a greater concentration on the fortification of strategic places in the Alaskan peninsular, and along future air routes of the new Arctic frontier.

The agreement signed by J. Stalin, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Winston S. Churchill at Yalta contained no negative, but a POSITIVE commitment to Soviet Russia.

The first paragraph of Section 3 of the Yalta agreement reads: "The Kurile Islands shall be handed over to the Soviet Union."

This has not been done. Russian armies are in possession. There is no power in the United States Senate to take the islands from Russia.

If in the treaty of peace with Japan, conceding there is to be such a document, thit is to be such a document, this concession between Stalin, Roosevelt and Churchill, is reaffirmed, and included within that document, and if on this account the Senate should REFUSE TO RATIFY the treaty, the status quo would not be altered.

Russia would still be in possession of the Kuriles.

And if Russia should refuse to surrender this part of the price allegedly paid for her war against Japan, there would be no way for the United States to take the Kuriles from her EXCEPT BY FORCE.

The agreement specifically provides that President Roosevelt would take measures to secure concurrence of Chiang Kai-shek in matters relating to China.

But Roosevelt did not include in the agreement any similar qualification as to obtaining the concurrence of the Seiate, or of the American Congress, in matters affecting the interests of the United States.

Rat-Killing Cat's Death Avenged

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 15 (AP)—Joseph A. Kyle protested to Gov. Edward Martin in a 1000-word letter today the "wanton murder" of his rat-catching cat, Pinto—a gaood citizen"—was an invasion of farmers' rights. He claimed a game warden shot Pinto.

Considering the number of rats the cat killed on his Mt. Bethel farm and the federal government's estimate each rat destroys more than $2.50 worth of grain annually, Kyle figured each of his pets should be worth several thousand dollars to me and to the state of Pennsylvania.

"Until Pinto is exonerated," Kyle wrote, "my farm shall be posted for the first time in 15 years against fishermen, hunters, trappers and cat-killing game wardens. And I urge all like-minded farmers to do likewise."

Gen. Bradley Again Refuses Stelle Bid

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 15 (AP)—John Stelle, national commander of the American Legion, said today he had authorized a second invitation to Gen. Bradley, veterans' administrator, to attend a Legion executive committee meeting at Indianapolis Sunday, but that the general refused "in view of a prior refusal and the publicity concerning it."

Stelle said he had no axe to grind with Gen. Bradley personally, but with the veterans' administration as a whole, and he's just letting the "chips fall where they may."

Breaking News

NORTH BELLMORE, N. Y., FEB. 15 (INS)—Mrs. Mary Vela, 72, decided today she'd better have broken windows in her home repaired.

Mrs. Vela, ill in a nursing home, came to this decision when informed pranksters who climbed in the windows during her absence found $2155 in a hidden satchel. After the money had been turned over to police, her nephew said the boys overlooked $1000 in currency in the pocket of a sweater.

Tomato-Face Lizzie

How She Can Pitch Aged Fruit!

DANIA, Fla., Feb. 15 (AP)—The heroine of the South Florida farm country today is a shy but fiery lass who took it and dished it out in Dania's 16th annual tomato festival fight.

She's 17-year-old Elizabeth Grant—"They call me Lizzie but I hate it."

She—let's call her Betty—was the star of the 16th annual tomato fight, where girl teams try to mow each other down with the ripe fruit for which this section is famed.

Armed with 2000 aged tomatoes, two eight-girl teams were reluctant to retire from the field when the final whistle blew. The fruit continued to fly.

The last to leave after a beautifully thrown curve into the face of a curvacious blonde opponent was battling Betty.

The judges, acknowledging their vision had been blurred and still wiping tomato seeds out of their eyes, called it a draw.

But thousands of spectators, who had howled with glee as they watched Betty, like old Horatius at the bridge, drive the other team back time and again with accurate heaves, howled louder for her at the end.

A two-inch blob of tomato skin clung to her nose. Red juice streamed down her sun-tanned cheeks. One eye bore the imprint of a perfect bull's-eye, and enough tomato seeds to plant an acre adorned her hair. She was more defiant than ever.

"When you get smacked in the face with half-a-dozen tomatoes, you kind of get mad," the uncrowned champ said. "I decided to forget beauty and got out there and pitched."

The event was suspended in 1942 because of the war. Betty fired 125 shots in the resumption of the event.

One of the spectators was another battler of note—former heavyweight champion Max Baer.

Vote Pearl Quiz Until June

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP)—Without dissent, the Senate and House today adopted a resolution extending the deadline for ending the Pearl Harbor investigation to June 1.

Sen. Barkley (D.) of Kentucky, told the Senate it was "the wish, hope and purpose" of the Senate-House inquiry committee not to ask any further extension of time.

Sen. Brewster (R.) of Maine, noted that additional witnesses, might be called. Barkley agreed members would not be prevented from seeking additional testimony, particularly from former Secretary of State Hull.

The inquiry, which began Nov. 15, was enlivened by a wordy row after Rep. Keefe (R.) of Wisconsin, asserted Col. R. S. Bratton had "sworn to a falsehood." Bratton hotly denied the charge.

WOODSMAN DIES IN FIRE

3 Erring Wives Lose Vet Mates

Two Navy veterans whose wives and babies by other men and a third veteran who charged his wife with infidelity, today obtained uncontested divorces in Suffolk Probate Court from Judge Wilson.

When the court commented it looked "like Navy Day," Atty. Reuben Hall said four other Navy vets whose wives had had babies while they were overseas had been reconciled.

Bo'sun 2c Ralph J. Cidlevicz, Ronan st., Dorchester, said his wife, Eleanor, had informed him in a 31-page letter she had become a mother and he was not the father.

CBM Charles E. Yates, Center st., Dorchester, was granted a divorce from Mary H. Yates after he testified she had written him she had had a baby by another man.

Ex-Seebee James Mercer, Magazine st., Cambridge, was granted a divorce from Edith W. Mercer, Los Angeles, on the grounds she had been unfaithful to him while he was serving in the Pacific.

2100 IN APRIL DRAFT

47 Snow Experts Invade Arctic

CHURCHILL, Man., Feb. 15 (AP)—The Canadian army's "Operation Musk Ox"—47 men traveling in 12 streamlined snow vehicles—headed north across Hudson Bay ice today on the first leg of an 81-day 3100-mile experimental trip through uncharted wastes of Arctic Canada.

A cannonade from two ancient six-pounders in the public square of this bleak trading post sent the party off under sunny skies at 43 below zero.

Immediate objective was Eskimo Point, a Hudson Bay trading post 210 miles north of Churchill four days distant.

Data will be kept on meteorology, radio signals—often disrupted by the aurora borealis—behavior of magnetic compasses, performance of sonwmobiles, suitability of various foods and clothing and feasibility of air supply to ground forces.

Prematurely born, the three tiny babies were placed in an incubator.

Vandals Puncture Many Back Bay Tires

Nearly a score of motorists who parked cars all night in the Riverway, Back Bay, today discovered vandals had flattened many tires, probably with an icepick.

First to discover the damage was a doctor who went out at 5 a. m. to answer a hospital call. He had two flat tires.

The reception is to be at Mrs. Coty's residence.

Given in marriage by her cousin James W. Craig, the bride is wearing ivory brocade with a hoop skirt and marquisette yoke edged with heirloom lace. Her illusion veil is attached to a coronet of ostrich tips and she is carrying stephanotis and white orchids.

Mrs. Rutherford Bingham

Mrs. Edward T. Davis of West Newton and Doris Louise Leschke of Hartford are honor attendants. The bridesmaids are Mrs. John C. Reading, Boston; Marjory Plimmer, Stoneham; Isabel Royce, East Jaffrey; Barbara Ann Smith, Lu Hitchen and Jean Worth, West Newton. They are wearing bouffant brocade gowns, four in pink and four blue, with matching lace mitts and ostrich headbands. They are carrying fans of pink carnations and blue delphinium. The bride's mother is wearing fuchsia velvet with a corsage of stephanotis.

Russell Carter is best man and the ushers are Albert Lounsbury, Clarence Hansberry, Lt. Edward T. Davis, John Devine, William Hudson, Warren G. Young and Wendell Smith, Jr.

Mr. Flanagan is the son of Mrs. Beulah Flanagan of Blythesville, Ark., and Mr. William E. Flanagan, Corpus Christi, Texas. Until recently he was in the Navy.

MRS. RUTHERFORD BINGHAM, socialite singer who has given recitals in some of Boston's most fashionable mansions, has added character sketches to her many talents and will impersonate two famous women as a surprise feature of her recital at the Women's Republican Club Sherry Room tea next Tuesday. Her mother, Mrs. James Cunningham Gray, and Mrs. Frederick S. Whitwell will pour. Mrs. Alfred B. Williams will be hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Cameron Saunders Thompson of Wellesley Hills are co-chairmen of the festive victory dinner dance to be given at Brae Burn Country Club next Friday evening. The party for both junior and senior club members will be a welcome home celebration for members who have been serving in the armed forces.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton H. Curtis and Mr. and Mrs. Dwight C. Arnold of West Newton are also on the committee. The peppy junior committee is headed by Mrs. William Wellington Paine, 2d (Patricia Ann Curtis, of West Newton and includes Mrs. Alexander Welch (Barbara Ann Thompson) of Waban, Mrs. John W. List 271 Ships For China Navy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP)—China's postwar Navy may get 271 small American ships, if Congress approves. Six destroyer-escorts are the largest vessels on the list Chairman Vinson (D.) of Georgia of the House naval committee made public today.

While the Navy asked Congress to give the President power to transfer surplus ships to China, Vinson's announcement of types was the first disclosure of details.

He urged the rules committee to clear the "Chinese Navy" bill for action next week.

Besides the six D-E's on the Navy's list, he said the ships the President "may" want to transfer include:

Six buoy and light tenders, 217 landing craft, six motor gunboats, four 136-foot sub chasers, six 173-foot chasers, 10 110-foot sub chasers, three oilers, one surveying ship, two repair ships, two floating drydocks and eight motor mine sweepers.

The Navy estimates 100 U. S. officers and 200 enlisted men would be needed temporarily to aid China's navy.

$62,000 Ransom In China Snatch

HONGKONG, Feb. 15 (AP)—Chinese who arrived in Hongkong from Macao said today a picul (130 pounds) of gold, more than $62,000 in American money, had been demanded as a prelude to opening negotiations for the release of the Portugese colony's gambling king, Foo Tak-Yam, snatched from a temple.

The Chinese said the demand was made in a letter to a son of the onetime doungnut peddler who rose to riches during the war.

Before the Japanese came to South China, Foo operated a gambling establishment outside the Hongkong colony border. He went to Macao about six years ago and entered a partnership in the gambling business. The firm became a monoply in the "Monte Carlo of the Orient." Finally Foo assumed the senior role. He acquired large property holdings

Disabled Train Ties New Haven Line

New Haven trains using the main line to New York were delayed 15 minutes to an hour today when a Boston to New Bedford local broke down while crossing the main line at Mansfield.

The breakdown occurred at 6:57 a. m. Wrecking crews cleared the tracks by 8 a. m. The Federal Express from Washington and the New Englander from Philadelphia arrived one hour late, while Providence to Boston service was from 15 to 45 minutes behind schedule. New Bedford and Taunton trains were 50 minutes late.

Yanks Play Nurse For Aussie Brides

SYDNEY, Feb. 13 (AP)—Husky, grinning Yanks played nursemaid today—carrying infants and wheeling baby carriages—to help Australian brides of American servicemen get aboard the Monterey.

The vessel is expected to sail today with 870 wives and children.

The women are taking a wide assortment of cutlery, sheepskin rugs, souvenirs, bomerangs, koala bears and ornaments.

Nylon Ructions

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Feb. 15 (AP)—One of the 1500 women lined up to get nylon stockings at a department store caused trouble by trying to infiltrate into the forward ranks.

About three-fourths back in line, she charged. The attack was a dismal failure. She was tossed for a big loss. Another woman tried to buy her way up front with a $20 bill, but was snubbed.

The women got to arguing and the manager called police. Meanwhile, the nylons had been sold.

Frank Butchered 3 Million Jews

NUERNBERG, Feb. 15 (AP)—The Russian prosecution presented documentary evidence to the International Military Tribunal today stating defendant Hans Frank was responsible for butchering 3,000,000 Jews while governor general of Poland.

Prosecutor said Frank entered in his diary that "there would not be enough forests in Poland" to supply paper for the lists of Poles he had slaughtered if he tried to emulate colleagues in Czechoslovakia by issuing posters announcing execution of a mere seven.

Clare Luce to Quit All Politics

By INEZ ROBB

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (INS)—Clare Boothe Luce is retiring permanently from politics.

Authoritative sources said her retirement from Congress next November, which she announced a fortnight ago, will likewise mark her complete withdrawal from the political arena.

The most beautiful member of Congress is not casting sheep's eyes at a seat in the U. S. Senate. She does not want to be governor of the Nutmeg State.

Mrs. Luce wants to return to her old job, that of playwright, at which she was fabulously successful before she took to politics.

GIVES UP JOB TO BROTHER

UNO Faces N. Y. Housing Problem

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—Confusion, speculation about the housing problem, and fears of added congestion were expressed here today at news that the UNO General Assembly in London had voted to make this city its interim headquarters for the next five years.

Adding to the uncertainty were such statements as that of Huntington Gilchrist, a UNO committee secretary in London, that part of the Empire State Building might be available as temporary headquarters for the secretariat.

"That's news to me," a spokesman for the building corporation commented. "I don't know where they'll put 'em. We're full up!"

So were most of the other big office structures in the city. The Chrysler Building, the RCA Building and others answered inquiries with the same familiar "no vacancies."

Further complications arose when it was learned at Rockefeller Center that the Center Theater, 49th st. and Avenue of Americas, which has been designated as the meeting place for the UNO general assembly, has not yet been cleared for its use.

The theater, it was revealed, is under lease for another full year to the producers of Sonja Henie's Ice show.

"If the UNO wants it," declared a Rockefeller Center spokesman, "of course they can have it. But they understand that the conditions include taking care of that lease, and it may cost a substantial amount to do so."

Further headaches for the UNO advance agents are bound to result from the housing problem already familiar to all New Yorkers.

The permanent secretariat of the assembly, according to officials at the UNO offices, 610 Fifth ave., will consist of between 1500 and 2400 men and women.

"The one thing that has been left unsettled so far is finding quarters for the permanent secretariat," a representative said.

Greenwich Still Fights To Bar UNO Capital

GREENWICH, Ct., Feb. 15 (AP)—This wealthy residential town went ahead today with plans for a referendum for voters to express sentiments on the choice of the Stamford-Greenwich-Westchester area for the UNO capital, although the UNO already has made up its mind.

The UNO general assembly's unanimous approval of the site including about a third of this town did not serve to still the clamor of protest from those who fear there will be wholesale evictions of property-holders when the world capital sets up shop on the Connecticut-New York border.

Robert A. Godfrey, Former Army Corporal, With His Pet, Pancho

INP by Harry Simard

"Pancho" is the son of an orphan of the hills of Italy, born just about at the war's end, but he has a loving ex-serviceman master that has seen to it that he's going to get the best that America can give.

He's the pet of Robert A. Godfrey of 319 Harold st., Roxbury, who is today's winner of a $5 prize in the Boston Record-American "Why I Love My Dog" contest. Needless to say, Godfrey, an ex-corporal in the Army, is strongly against vivisection. Here's his letter:

"Pancho is more than just a dog to me. He's a living reminder of the hardships, thrills and adventures I had during my 19 months in Italy.

"Being a member of an infantry outfit, I was always on the move. When we were in the high Appennines, spotted with well placed pill boxes, the miracle of miracles happened. From the cellar of a shell torn building trotted a little Spitz dog, one whose life had been spared in spite of all the shells that had been thrown at the structure. My buddies and I vowed that she would be spared the life of a stray dog, as are so many in devastated Europe.

"Darry was what we called this little orphan and she had one puppy. This was Pancho. At the age of three months Pancho made his trip to America and I and my pet are happy in the knowledge that in this country he can romp and play without ever having to duck shells or battle other dogs to exist."

All letters on the subject, "Why I Love My Dog," should be addressed to the Anti-Vivisection Editor, Boston Record-American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston 9, Mass. The contest is open to all, and these newspapers will award a $5 prize each day for the best letter.

Vatican Readied for Cardinals' Consistory

Quake Did This—An 80-foot section of brick wall tumbled in on the Frye Packing Plant in Seattle, Wash., in last night's earthquake and caused damage estimated at $30,000 to building and machine shop equipment. Tremors extended from northwest coastal states to Vancouver, B. C.

For Pope
At the public consistory Feb. 21 in St. Peter's Cathedral, Pope Pius will wear this mitre (left) of silver cloth studded with topazes, rubies, emeralds and 12 diamonds. The pectoral cross (below mitre) of gold, studded with diamonds, the pectoral shield (center) and two 22.4 carat gold rings, and (right) the mitre of gold cloth also will be worn by Pius during ceremonies that day. Final benediction for the cardinals will be given from the book which Brother Frederico (photo at left), member of the Vatican ceremonial staff, displays.

FREEDOM IS THE ISSUE

NINETY YEARS AGO in Abraham Lincoln's time, said Former President Herbert Hoover in his recent address commemorating the birthday of his illustrious predecessor, the great issue before the American people was their FREEDOM.

Today no less than then, Mr. Hoover believes, the American people are still confronted by the same basic issue.

While the menace to freedom is now of a different nature than then, he warned, the consequences of our failure to recognize and combat and defeat the present menace would be the same as they would have been if there had been a similar failure in Lincoln's time.

The greatest current danger to freedom in America is our new ECONOMIC TYRANNY, growing out of the unrestrained and irresponsible political powers of the ruling elements of organized labor.

For as Mr. Hoover said:

"Free men cannot permit economic tyranny, whether by capital or labor, any more than they can tolerate political tyranny."

Inevitably the fruits of this yielding of economic and political freedom to selfish and arrogant and vicious groups are tremendous and excessive powers of government.

The American people have not been told the TRUTH about their free and beneficial way of life often enough.

American productive enterprise has been viciously villified and disparaged by the sinister groups seeking economic and political power in the country, but it has never been effectively DEFENDED by the competent business men and industrialists who have the most faith in it and know the most about it.

American business men and industrial leaders should use every channel of public information to tell the people about their products and processes, about their hopes and opportunities, about the sources and disposition of their income—in order that the people may understand these essential matters and realize the relation between them and their own prospects for gainful and fruitful lives.

FORWARD STEP

MEMBERS OF the Joint Committee on Judiciary of the Massachusetts Legislature have recommended a bill which would permit juries to make a unanimous recommendation for life imprisonment in first degree murder convictions and give judges discretionary power in accepting it or pronouncing a sentence of death.

This should result in better, fairer and more efficient trials.

The mandatory death chair law has made juries hard to assemble and convictions even harder to obtain.

And it has been often suspected that verdicts might have been more harsh on occasions if jurors had not been confused and confounded by arbitrary and archaic statutes which dangled the awesome spectacle of the executioner and his grim tools before them.

HOPEFUL CHOICE

GOVERNOR TOBIN'S nomination of John J. Desmond of Chicopee for the position of State Commissioner of Education will be generally endorsed.

Mr. Desmond, a Boston native, a Harvard graduate and a provenly successful school superintendent, has the proper education and training for the important post.

In the first World War he fought for his country.

In the years of peace that followed he ably defended the country in books and on lecture platforms.

His good record gives us every reason to believe he will staunchly uphold the American way and never expose his high office to the alien practices and poisons which have no place in democratic education.

On the Side By E. V. Darling

Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

The ghost-town's empty windows
Stare like wistful eyes
Down streets where nothing moves
But memories and the wind.
When midnight comes, eerie cries
Ring out, recalling nights
When rowdy sins were sinned
And bearded miners seeking
Laughter, liquor and bright lights
Flung gold nuggets on the bars
To buy forgetfulness of lonely mountain nights.

—DON BLANDING.

ABOVE is inscribed under Frank M. Moore's dramatic painting of a ghost town on California's world famous "Picture Bridge" at the Hotel Huntington, Pasadena . . . The campaign for the decentralizing of the population of the U. S. A. seems to be making some progress. As witness the following advertisement which appeared in a Los Angeles newspaper: "Shoes for sale. Owner going back to Arkansas."

YOUNG IDEA: Californian claims her female child said "Daddy" and "Mamma" at the age of seven and a half months, walked at nine months and could dress herself at three. Chicago mother says her male offspring could dress himself at two and a half, including lacing his own shoes. Brooklyn hasn't been heard from lately on the subject of clever kiddies. I asked my sister if I had done anything unusual when a small child. She said: "Well, one time when you were supposed to be sick you got out of bed, sneaked out of the house and were found four hours later five blocks away playing in a vacant lot attired in nothing but your cute little night shirt."

PASSING BY: Harry "Bing" Crosby. The apple knocker from Tacoma, who has become the world's most popular singer of popular songs. The Old Groaner doesn't look so well. He is much too thin and has a weary and worn out appearance. He should take a long vacation on his cattle ranch in Nevada . . . Thyra Samter Winslow. The best writer ever born in Ft. Smith, Ark. Recently commenting on Abner Silver's book, "All Women Are Wolves," Thyra said: "Of course I know women are wolves, but I didn't think men would find it out." Men have known it for a long time. For centuries in fact. Ever since the days of Potiphar's wife. Mr. Silver just happened to be the first man to realize that writing a book about it might prove a profitable venture.

Bing Crosby

PLEASE NOTE: "The Merry Widow" is to be produced once more as a film. That's the third time. Or is it the fourth? I wish some Hollywoodian would produce "Rose Marie" again. The first production of this left much to be desired. Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy are both extremely clever, but never should have been featured in "Rose Marie." Furthermore, in the version being discussed, the comedy part of "Hardboiled" Herman was entirely eliminated. Played by William Kent, that was one of the best features of the original stage production.

Jeanette MacDonald

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—Do you remember Nat M. Wills and Maggie Cline? A—Maggie Cline was before my time. I recall Nat Wills as the tramp comedian in vaudeville . . . Q—About what year was the song "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows" popular? A—Can't say. Guess I must be slipping as a memory expert on songs, I can't even recall when "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles" was popular.

INDIANS: Ever see a team of American Indian tight rope walkers? Neither have I, but the red men should be good at that. American Indians never get dizzy. They make excellent workers on bridge and skyscraper construction jobs. Some of the most daring workers in the construction of Manhattan skyscrapers have been Indians. Incidentally, about 1000 American Indians live in New York city, most of them domiciled in apartment houses.

HORSES & WOMEN: On the average women live longer than men. Nevertheless, fewer women live to be 50 years of age than men. Once a woman has passed 50 her chances of living to be 70 or 80 are better than those of the average man. Women in their middle 40's do a lot of worrying about getting old. Those in their 50's don't worry much about it. There are more really gay old ladies than old men. And the gayest of these gay old ladies seem to be widows. Or do I just imagine that?

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1946, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

THERE SEEMS to be some room for improvement in our domestic affairs, but to those despondent souls who think matters could not be worse, I would address a note of cheer in the form of an inquiry.

Westbrook Pegler

How do they think we would have gone about untangling ourselves just now if Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Harry Hopkins and, latterly, the late Mr. Roosevelt had had their way?

Not long after Pearl Harbor, Mrs. Roosevelt told us about one of those interesting discussions which had taken place on one of her rare nights at home of a Sunday evening in the White House and said it was her conclusion that the government should relieve us all of the problem of deciding what we should do in the war effort and should tell us what to do—men and women.

AND MR. HOPKINS, in a much more peremptory tone, told us that we would do as we were told and go where we were sent and warned us that civilian workers would be billeted on civilians in their homes, apparently with no regard for the character of either the boarders or the home owners and with equal disdain for the spirit of the Constitution which forbade the billeting of soldiers in private dwellings.

He seemed slightly exultant in the prospect that a social leader would be compelled by the government to become a boarding-house keeper and a peculiar fact, which may have occurred to him but may have escaped those whom he threatened with a personal application of the Russian society in the U. S. A., was that nobody had ever elected him to any public position or authorized him to push us around and invade and disrupt our homes.

He was just a personal friend of the Roosevelts who had been living in our Presidential mansion at our expense for several years and making more money one way and another, including some from the sale of such impudent threats, than he had ever made in his life before.

Nevertheless, Hopkins had the gall to add: "It isn't just talk and it won't blow over and it does mean you."

OF COURSE, it didn't mean Hopkins, who was a member of the ruling and privileged group set up in preliminary imitation of the Russian stratified society, nor Mrs. Rosevelt, herself, nor Henry Wallace, whose special quality was demonstrated when he doodled around, out of a job, between inauguration 1945 and the day when the boss canned Jesse Jones and gave him the post of Secretary of Commerce in recognition of his humble plodding and door-bell ringing in the role of Johnny Appleseed during the fourth-term campaign.

If Henry had been a common man and not a special job, in those days of the ostensible but fake shortage of factory labor, he might have got himself a pair of dungarees and a card in the CIO and gone to work.

Later on, enlarging her thoughts, Mrs. Roosevelt put it to us that a young man should not be allowed to become a doctor just because he wanted to and that, having become a doctor, he shouldn't be allowed to hang out his shingle wherever he pleased but should be assigned, arbitrarily, to a place where authority, who would be called a commissar in Russia, should decide that his services were needed.

These are some of the novelties that two of the most powerful personalities in the Roosevelt government proposed for the American people, many of whom, nevertheless, still revere the ruling set as God-sent selfless benefactors of the common man, and Mr. Roosevelt himself, after a long spell of waiting, finally endorsed the substance of their proposals about a year ago.

IMAGINATION not only falters but swoons at the thought of the problem of social, industrial and personal reconversion now, added to the calamities of readjustment of the service men and women, had Mrs. Roosevelt and Hopkins had their way and scrambled the people at home as they so heartily proposed.

And they weren't kidding us, either. They meant it in the words of Hopkins that "IT ISN'T JUST TALK AND IT WON'T BLOW OVER AND IT DOES MEAN YOU."

Hollywood

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 15—When Gov. Jimmy Davis of Louisiana arrives in town Sunday night he won't have to worry about the kind of reception he receives. He's bringing along his own 10-piece band, both to give himself the proper entrance and because he's going to record several of his own hillbilly tunes while here.

I also hear that Governor Davis is going to close a deal at Columbia for a series of Western pictures to be made following the end of his term as Governor, or if he can sandwich them in during vacations from his gubernatorial job while he's still Governor.

Linda Darnell

That would make him the only Governor-movie star. Gene Autry is throwing a reception next Monday night at the Plaza in honor of his excellency, who, everybody says, is really a great guy.

THIS IS ONE of the few times in my life I wish I didn't have so many jobs. Howard Hughes asked me to go on the initial trip of "Star of California," sister ship of the Constellation. But with a column and a broadcast, I can't do it. The plane left here last night, or shall I say very early Friday morning at 12:01, with Hughes at the controls. In the plane were Cary Grant, Walter Pidgeon, Veronica Lake, Andrea de Toth, Jack Warner, Harry Cohn, David Selznick, Edward G. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Scott, Jack Carson, Linda Darnell, Mr. and Mrs. William Powell, Mr. and Mrs. John Maschio, Walter Kane, John Meyer, Nancy Guild, Frank Morgan, Janet Blair among the movie folk. The trip is expected to take a little over seven hours from Los Angeles to New York. Isn't it wonderful?

THE LATEST movie battle is between Martha O'Driscoll and Universal. She refused to do the Pine and Thomas picture, "Danger Street" and was put on suspension by Universal. Now Martha has turned the tables and is demanding her release. She feels Universal hasn't done right by our Nell in the matter of good movies and believes she can do better for herself and so she wants to free lance. Whether or not Universal will give her the freedom she craves is a moot question.

ANITA LOOS had to take time out from her writing job on "The Pirate" for flu, but she'll soon be back on the set. She and Joseph Than have been working hard getting "The Pirate" ready for Judy Garland and Gene Kelly. Won't that be a wonderful combination? And here's some other news about the Lunt and Fontanne story which emerges in the movies as a musical comedy. Cole Porter is coming here to write the music and you know it will be good. It's Judy's first after she has her baby.

MADELEINE CARROLL is due here April 1 and you needn't be surprised if she makes a picture. Her farm in France, where she has taken care of so many war orphans, is an expensive proposition, and Madeleine has made practically no money since the outbreak of the war. She has been much in demand with many offers cabled her, but while she was married to Stirling Hayden they had an agreement not to make any more pictures. Now that they are divorcing, and he is signed by Paramount, she will not be bound by any promises.

NOW THAT the "Hopalong Cassidys" have hopped up again—Andy Clyde gets back his old role of California and will drawl, "They went thataway, pardner," when Bill Boyd rides up and asks him. Andy's been a movie standby for years and years and he's always funny. I believe that he and Bill have 30 of these "Hopalongs" to their credit and the new deal with United Artists calls for 18 more. Isn't that some sort of a record for a series? The funny thing about Andy being cast continually in these typical Western roles is that he was born in Blairgowrie, Scotland, and he's never played a Scotchman.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: The big party Joan Fontaine was giving Saturday night has been cancelled, because Joanie is very sick with influenza and in the hospital; Marlene Dietrich has wired Charles Trezona, her business manager, that she's making a quick trip to Hollywood from Paris before she starts her picture in England; I am sorry to say the reconciliation between Ann Dvorak and Leslie Fenton seems to have failed; Brian Donlevy is trying to coax Paramount to buy a story by Sanford Robson, based on the fabulous career of "Toots" Shor, restaurant owner in New York; the Hal Roaches are giving a dinner party Sunday night for Jimmy Walker and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Tracey. The Traceys are charming people and were brought to Atwater Kent's party by Jimmy, who looks younger, I swear, everytime I see him; the Michael Harveys are expecting a baby in about five months. He was with Paramount before he went into the Air Force, and Mrs. Harvey is the former Powers model, Joyce Coleman.

MRS. JULIAN YOUNG, wife of the man who owns the Anticipation Shop in Beverly Hills, is expecting another baby in the summer. Well, she knows where to buy her clothes for the event—in the shop where Hedy Lamarr, Rita Hayworth, Gloria De Haven, Dorothy Lamour and all the girls buy their maternity wardrobes; John Wayne and his bride are back from Honolulu where they honeymooned. They spent 21 of their 22 days on the island in a hotel because it rained constantly. Speaking of brides and grooms, Brian Aherne and his bride will welcome Mrs. Aherne's brother, Alfred De Liagre and Mary Howard De Liagre, who have been in Mexico; Patric Knowles is taking his wife and kids to London as soon as he finishes his picture. It will be his first trip there in eight years to see his relatives; Burgess Meredith is down with the flu. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

EVERGLADES, FLA., Feb. 15—I wish I was doing a fishing column because, for some strange reason, everybody believes a fishing editor but gets skeptical whenever anyone else gets on the subject of fish.

I have just come back from the darndest day's fishing, however, and I will go nuts if I can't get someone to listen. Already five people have walked away from me—and the place seems filled with folks who suddenly remember some urgent business they must attend to when they see me approach.

We went down to a spot off Chokoloskee Island,, near the Gulf of Mexico, and anchored in a quiet backwater by the simple expedient of throwing a rope around the branch of a jutting mangrove. We used old-time bamboo poles—like the kids used to have—and shrimp bait.

Inside of an hour, in this one spot, we caught snook, grouper, trout, sheepsheads, triggerfish, yellow jack, snapper, channel bass, and redfish. We had to quit because the fish box was loaded up.

Incidentally, that trigger fish is a weird article. Claus Senghaas, manager of the Rod and Gun Club, explained its eccentricity.

It has a big fin on top and a smaller fin just astern. Exert all the strength you have and you can't push the big fin down. But the slightest touch on the little fin makes the big one come down like the hammer on a gun. Wonderful thing nature, ain't it?

I WAS STANDING on top of the boat when a sting ray with a five-foot wingspread came downstream. I must have let out a yell because it looked up with what I considered a very dirty look and then sounded—which is the way us old fishermen speak of a fish going to the bottom.

I asked the skipper why they call it a sting ray and he said because it stings. I asked if he had ever been stung.

"Just once," said the skipper, "and that was enough."

"Where did it sting you?" asked Mr. Elliot Simpson, my fishing companion, who is a bug for exactitude.

"Well," said the skipper, "I must have backed into him. I do not know to this day how it happened, but I know I was stung and where. In fact, its sticker came off in me—I have it here."

I thought he meant he still had it in him but it turned out to be in a box beside the compass. It was a nasty-looking thing about 9 inches long with sort of small saw edges.

"Try the point," said the skipper. I did—on Mr. Simpson—and he yelled like anything.

THESE WATERS are alive with shark and barracuda, but the skipper said they do not frighten him any. I asked if he did much swimming thereabouts.

"No," he said, "I do not care a great deal for swimming."

He said, however, he had gone in the water a couple of months ago but had not remained any longer than necessary.

WHEN WE RETURNED there was a letter from Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming.

It seems the Senator is very beholden to a safety pin and not for the reason you may imagine. He was driving recently from Cheyenne to Lasalle, Colo., with Gov. Lester C. Hunt of Wyoming, when the gearshift lever on the Governor's car broke.

Efforts to repair it failed until Gov. Hunt recalled he had a safety pin on his person—exact locale not specified. The pin was employed to hold the broken lever together—and the journey continued.

(Note to Senator O'Mahoney: Thanks—but how did Gov. Hunt happen to have that safety pin?)

A WHILE BACK I managed to get an interview with the little woman in which she asserted that labor leaders responsible for the present situation should be publicly hanged. The little woman has just received a fan letter—her first—from Mrs. Mark R. Hodges of Topsfield, Mass., who writes:

"I agree with you. Keep your head and don't let George confuse you with a lot of masculine sophistry about credit or machine ages or any of that truck. I listen to a lot of rubbish about the difference between public and private contract and debt but it doesn't fool me any.

"As to all this nonsense about how complicated the strike problem is I know better. It's very simple. Just do the few simple things you agreed to do in the beginning: Protect people from physical violence, destruction or invasion of their property, and moral attacks through intimidation or libel.

"So you can see I am very anti-union."

Boston After Dark

A TAXI DRIVER WHO WAS SUSPENDED for 30 days after he was beaten and robbed by three assailants in the South End appealed the penalty . . . The trial board of three police captains who heard the appeal made the suspension permanent . . . A veteran and father of two children, the cab jockey has gone to friends with a story that his suspension followed his failure to identify "two innocent men" as the thugs who beat and robbed him.

THE FRIENDS have become excited about the case, and the most important development probably will be some headlines in the daily prints . . . Out of the headlines, other Boston taxi drivers hope that some judicial procedure will be evolved other than the present system which establishes a tribunal of three police captains as their last court of appeal.

AS ORIGINAL punishments currently are meted out by a deputy superintendent of police, and as that official outranks the captains who form the appellate board, there does seem to be a possibility that the captains might hesitate in overruling their superior officer . . . We trust that Deputy Supt. Hinchey will not interpret these few paragraphs as being critical of him . . . The taxicab driver's target in his appeal for "justice" is an official higher than Mr. Hinchey, and—as we have mentioned before — Deputy Hinchey's job of handling the Boston traffic problem is the same sort of sinecure as that held by the man who was told to move the Alps with a teaspoon.

AMONG THE "NOW IT CAN BE TOLD" stories of the recent war should be the story of the Norfolk Prison Colony's inmates who volunteered as subjects in September, 1942, to further the scientific testing of beef blood plasma as a possible substitute for human blood . . . 214 men volunteered . . . One died, and many were stricken seriously ill as a result of the tests . . . Of the 214 volunteers, all but 15 have been released via pardon or parole . . . Penal authorities and ranking officers of the Navy have gone on record as favoring the release of ALL who participated in the tests.

R. ADM. STEPHENSON, U. S. N., in a report to the Secretary of the Navy, said in part: "It is the opinion of this writer that these men are equally as heroic as the volunteers who participated in the research on yellow fever during the Spanish-American War, and are deserving of recognition" . . . Some fine literature came out of that earlier experiment in which prisoners were used as guinea pigs for the United States at war, and confronted with a serious problem of health and life-saving."

THE PLAY "Yellow Jack," which became a motion picture in the course of time, immortalized those experiments . . . The late Charles K. Koerner of RKO was interested vitally in a story of the experiments made by the Norfolk Colony's heroes, and a title, "Bad Man's Lady," had been accepted tentatively for the story . . . The theme of the proposed film was a simple one . . . It told of the parole of men who had proved their courage by volunteering for the blood plasma experiments; of their later comradeship on a disguised fighting ship which fought in the Pacific, and of heroism in action . . . The "lady" of the story was the ship . . . The fact is that many inmates of the "model" Norfolk colony were paroled to serve in the merchant marine, and more than a few of the boys distinguished themselves.

FROM THOSE SAME plasma experiments with Norfolk inmates as subjects, Dr. F. J. Cohn, biochemistry professor at Harvard, received the $5000 Passano award for achievement in medical science . . . The tests were conducted with the U. S. Government, Harvard Medical School and Massachusetts penal authorities and a large group of the Norfolk colony's patriotic inmates collaborating . . . The detailed story would be a thrilling one, and isn't censorship relaxed enough to let it be aired at last?

THE HOTEL FENSGATE'S new lobby is beautiful, and the last word in modern decor . . . The Satire Room, incidentally, has gone "popular" priced . . . It is being used now as a cocktail lounge—no entertainment and no more cola drinks at 90 cents per smack.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—George Bernard Shaw tells London intimates he's planning a visit to the United States in the near future . . . Rodgers and Hammerstein are taking out a quarter of a million dollars insurance policy on Ethel Merman as the star of "Annie Oakley," which probably will be retitled "Annie Get Your Gun." The policy will stay in effect until the show has been paid off. However, there is a possibility that the producers may postpone the musical until next fall because of Lee Shubert's reluctance to promise the Broadway Theater for the production . . . Honeychile Wilder, the Manhattan playgirl, has been seriously ill in Rio de Janeiro . . . Eleanor Roosevelt will shelve her own senatorial aspirations in favor of ex-Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, political insiders aver. Morgenthau's lid will go into the ring to succeed James Mead.

Ethel Merman

EDITH ROARK is shopping for an East Side location for her night club. Her steel millionaire beau will supply the green stuff . . . Plans for German reindustrialization have been substantially modified, and the State Department and War Department are passing the buck on who'll control administration in Germany after June 30 . . . George (Gran-pappy) Raft's steadiest companion these days is Audrey Young . . . Lew Ayres, who didn't drink or smoke before he went overseas, now does a little of each "just to be sociable. . . . Previewers of the new film, "Gilda," are snickering spontaneously when Rita Hayworth utters the line: "I was faithful to a man—and look what happened to me" . . . Lois Andrews is now doing the glitter places accompanied by a secretary . . . The swankier Everglades Club in Palm Beach recently asked a member—a "Count"—to turn in his resignation quietly. The board discovered he was not only a phony nobleman, but a card sharp . . . Lois De Fee has some new time on her hands. An admirer surprised her with a watch studded with 32 diamonds and 30 rubies . . . Actor Robert Merritt ("Jacobowsky and the Colonel") and Susan Snyder, whose pop runs the New Yorker, are a heartillery barrage . . . Catherine Murray, Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's sister, turned down the society editorship of a new magazine because she didn't want to cash in on her sister's position.

How Japs Put 3 Fliers in Flames

SHANGHAI, Feb. 15 (AP)—Three Japanese said in signed confessions read today at their war crimes trial three American fliers were strangled, and admitted they drew tight the cords with which it was done.

All three pleaded they acted under orders. They said the fliers were cremated after being strangled. Previous witnesses testified they were put into furnaces while still alive, Dec. 16, 1944.

Chinese previously testified the fliers were 2 Lt. Lester R. White, Slickville, Pa., and Sgts. Henry Wheaton, Milwaukee; and James E. Forbes, Jr., East Hartford, Ct.

Jap Industry Recovers Fast

TOKYO, Feb. 15 (AP)—Some 246 Japs pedalled about today on sparkling new bicycles, attesting to the steady progress in Japan's slow industrial revival.

Not a single new bicycle—and little of anything else—was produced in October and November.

Now, the commerce and industry ministry reports, bikes are dribbling out; chemical fertilizer production is up 70 per cent; cement output jumped from 39,000 to 71,000 metric tons in the last quarter of 1945, and coal production rose from 545,000 metric tons in October to 840,000 in December. Farm implement manufacture is up by 25 per cent.

the King and amid the rococo state buildings reared by the late, unlamented Benito Mussolini. The Archbishop rested last night exactly one kilometer from the Vatican across the Tiber river.

Few people have witnessed such a panorama as passed under our eyes yesterday beginning shortly after the cardinal-designate said mass in Notre Dame de Paris. Paris was shrouded in a faint violet transparency as we hurried to Orly field. Almost immediately, we were skimming down the airstrip toward the air itinerary which the Archbishop had previously outlined. It was the same flight route which he followed one-half hour later, through central France until we reached Lyon, then sharp left toward the Swiss Alps. Presently, a vast white jumble of Europe's scenic wonder swelled from the horizon as though God had dumped all his left-over rubbish, in undulating piles, after fashioning the world.

At 10,000 feet the grandeur was numbing. We seemed to hang suspended, unconscious of flight, as the towering expanse of the Matterhorn almost filled the glass blister where I stood, in the plane's nose. Beyond stretched an apron of lesser peaks. Yonder was the sapphire blue pool of Geneva and, beyond, deep valleys that smoked with mist. We hovered there half an hour, feeling the awful immensity of creation, and then swung south again toward the flat, sepia, winter-bleached Rhone Valley where less than a year ago the U. S. 7th Army forced its way into the gateway of Hitler's Festung Europa.

"Join Abp. Spellman and see the world," commented a press attache to his seatmate, Msgr. Thomas McDonnell of New York. For indeed the Whitman-born prelate knew his global geography as few other men. Somewhere in the vastness of the blue, he was following, as we passed over Marseille in 8 below zero, but where the sun came hotly through the glass ports. Below was the Cote d'Azur, the azure coast where the Mediterranean sea looked like blue morocco leather, flat as a book binding and wind-dappled.

The day before, the Archbishop had told me, "I want you all to see this. There is nothing like it in the universe." Here was a man approaching the most imposing moment of his life, yet planning a plane route for people he hardly knew.

The Ligurian Sea, capped in a hollow of the upper Italian peninsula; Corsica, its hills covered with forests, looking like the scruff of a buffalo's back; then the snakelike Tiber and the ageless country where Caesar's legions had fought Hannibal, and the German Visigoths had swept down from the north; and, finally, the metropolis of the Catholic faith.

The war has left Rome among the few major cities of Europe as it always was through the centuries. The only noticeable damage, which the Archbishop scrutinized with interest, was to railroad marshalling yards on the southern side and to the hangars of big Campilo Airfield. Night lights glimmered, and shops with ample stocks were open. Crowds were shopping and donkey carts and trucks were passing through the streets. Rome and its people seemed to have survived intact.

GI Paper Asks Ouster Probe

TOKYO, Feb. 15 (AP)—Eighteen staff members of Pacific Stars and Stripes, Army newspaper, today radioed the House and Senate military committees and the Senate judiciary committee asking an investigation "of Army policy and procedure which permits branding men as disloyal without giving them an opportunity to defend themselves."

T-3 Ken Pettus, managing editor, and T-3 Barnard Rubin, columnist, recently were removed from Stars and Stripes and ordered to Okinawa because, they said they were informed, of a negativere port on a loyalty check.

Their departure for Okinawa was delayed pending an investigation by MacArthur's inspector general.

Former Serviceman Gets $8000 Instead of Old Job

MIDDLEFIELD, O., Feb. 15 (AP)—The Johnson-Sperry Co. disclosed today under an agreement it had paid $8000 to a former serviceman for not giving him his old job back.

Sol Sperry, partner in the firm, said the sum went to William T. Maguire, now a resident of Larchmont, N. Y., former eastern regional sales representative for the company which distributes products of the Johnson Rubber Co.

"When Maguire applied for re-employment we explained we just couldn't afford for the sake of good business summarily to get rid of the man who had replaced him during the war," Sperry said, adding:

"We suggested some arrangement be worked out, but explained to Maguire he would be taken back . . . if he was not completely satisfied."

He said Maguire agreed to accept, in place of the old job, the largest annual amount he had made with the company before he entered the Navy. This was $8000.

Read and Weep! No Sheer Nighties for Brides-to-Be

By DOROTHY DOAN

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (INS)—Frenzied brides-to-be, unable to buy a single silk nightie for their trousseaus are contemplating a "march on Washington."

That's the story carried in a trade paper, "Women's Wear Daily."

"What shall be do?" cry the maidens.

"Wrap up in outing flannel," counters the unsympathetic Civilian Production Administration.

"Never!" swear the brides-to-be. "We'll freeze first."

And there the matter rests—as far as CPA is concerned.

"Our decision that nightgowns are not essential has provoked the protests of the garment industry, of course. We believe, however, women can do without them temporarily," CPA says flatly.

Running interference for the prospective brides is a battalion of lingerie manufacturers who are protesting the CPA ruling that rayon nighties are unessential and sheer sleeping attire just so much fluff.

Women's Wear Daily quotes this plea from the mother of a bride-to-be:

"The march on Washington need not be an actual one. It could be done by a torrent of letters to Senators and Congressmen—maybe even the President."

Cherry Pies Spotlight Feb. 22 Tree Legend Time

By MARTHA LEE, Household Editor

HOME COOKS can begin to think again about making cherry pies and a lot of other fine desserts as the cherry dessert season rolls round — appropriately enough along with George Washington's birthday and the annual reminder of the famous cherry tree legend. It is still a favorite legend and it is one of the reasons why National Cherry Week, Feb. 15 to 22, is observed at this time.

There's another good reason why February is the month for cherries to spring to the front line of culinary interest. After the harvest time has yielded the crop to provide fruit for fresh cherry desserts, and to inspire the thrifty home executive to fill her pantry shelf with canned cherries, an early winter cherry lull sets in—and other fruits take the seasonal spotlight.

The past year's cherry pack for civilians wasn't as extensive as it might have been. But on days when canned cherries are unavailable, you are pretty sure to find frozen cherries in the market. They will serve the purpose quite as well

FROSTY CHERRY RICE DESSERT

2 cups milk ½ cup rice
2 eggs
2 cups tart red cherries
1 cup whipped cream
1 cup sugar

Combine milk and rice in double boiler and cook until rice is tender. Beat eggs; add sugar and fold into rice mixture. Continue cooking until mixture thickens. Remove from heat and add cherries. When cool place in refrigerator freezing tray. Top with layer of whipped cream and garnish with whole tart red cherries. Place in freezing compartment only long enough to set the whipped cream. Do not freeze mixture too hard. If preferred, the whipped cream may be folded into the rice mixture and then placed in freezing tray. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CHERRY SHORTCAKE A LA MODE

Cut a sponge cake into squares, top with ice cream. Add another square and add more ice cream on top. Serve with cherry sauce.

CHERRY SAUCE

1 cup sugar
½ cup cherry juice, drained from canned or frozen cherries
1 tbsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. grated lemon rind
Pinch of salt
2 cups pitted, canned or frozen cherries

Combine sugar and cherry juice. Boil until syrup spins a thread, about 5 minutes. Add lemon juice, grated rind, salt and cherries. Cool.

CHERRY RED PUDDING

1 pkg. cherry gelatin
1 cup hot water
1 cup cherry juice
1 cup seeded, canned white cherries, halved
1 banana

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add fruit juice. Chill. When slightly thickened, fold in cherries. Turn into small shallow pan. Slice banana over top of gelatin. If desired, sprinkle with ½ cup broken walnut meats. Press slices gently below surface. Chill until firm. Cut in squares. Makes 6 servings.

CHERRY CRUMB CUSTARD

2 cups cherry juice, plus milk
2 eggs, slightly beaten
½ cup sugar ¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. vanilla
Tart red cherries from 1 No. 2 can
½ cup dry bread crumbs

Drain juice from can of pitted tart red cherries. Add enough milk to make total of 2 cups of liquid. Add remaining ingredients and pour into baking dish or individual baking cups. Place in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 20 to 30 minutes, or until firm. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Singing in Your Bathtub

Beauty

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Beauty and Fashion Editor

PARDON US FOR INTRUDING, but wouldn't you like to bathe in apple blossoms? The ritual of the bath is strictly a personal affair we know . . . but we can't help resisting the feeling of spring and taking you out of the prosaic and into the robust fantasy of cleansing observance.

Wholesome cleanliness is an American by-word, we know . . . but as exponents of the luxurious and feminine pursuance of the ordinary . . . we like to think of making even the common-place bath a thing of beauty supreme.

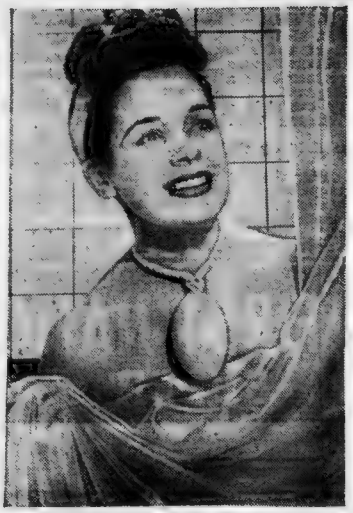
Maybe you're not one of the legion who like to sing in the bathtub to while away the humdrum moments spent in completion of all that is American and right . . . but what woman doesn't like to loll in the caressing waters of the bath enveloped by the wonderful fragrance of apple blossoms in full bloom?

And just in case we're a bit obscure in our choice of words . . . we're talking about a wonderful body soap that softens the skin of the anatomy as it does the job for which it was originally intended. For even a bath and complexion soap can surpass the limits of the ordinary, thanks to those men who dream up the choicest things for you and for me.

We're not seeking recourse to idle words when we choose to spotlight this superb bath soap which makes prosaic bathing a dream-world indulgence in apple blossoms. Maybe we can't escape injecting the personal into our work . . . but it is because we use yours truly as a guinea pig in the selection of what's nicest for you and you that we find these unusual and luxurious enjoyments which most women enjoy and thrive on.

Bathing can be more than a daily necessity. It can be beautiful . . . just as beautiful as life and living and making wonderful friends.

This bath and complexion soap develops into such a creamy lather that you find yourself softly caressed by millions of multi-colored and iridescent soap bubbles all the time you're going about your business of removing dirt and grime. And it IS such a glorious feeling. For the name of this superb bath soap, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.



MOST homes have the most beautiful shower curtains . . . like this Krene film plastic creation that doesn't show a single stitch . . . but it's the shower or tub bath that makes for robust vitality and enjoyment . . . and a superb bath with complexion soap which envelops the body in an aura of apple blossoms in full bloom is one of the nicest ways to enjoy it.

Pick-Up Girl in Quandary

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I met a young fellow on a train. He kept staring at me till I finally laughed. I couldn't control myself. Then we began talking. He took me to a movie. I'm considered a good girl, as I never drink, smoke or neck with boys.

What's bothering me is, could he really like and respect me since he picked me up? He asked to see me again, and he treated me with respect, so I made a date with him. Could you tell me if I shouldn't see him any more? I know I was wrong in letting him pick me up, but it was all clean fun. I'm 21 years old. So is he.
GUILTY.

You haven't necessarily done anything to feel guilty about. Obviously, it's not very smart—unless you're looking for trouble—to let yourself be "picked up" by a perfect stranger. But pleasant friendships occasionally do result from unconventional beginnings. It's all up to you.

If you behave, in any future relations with this young man, like a self-respecting young woman, with sound ideas on what's right and wise and what isn't, there's no reason why he shouldn't treat you accordingly. Provided, of course, his own ideas are fundamentally sound and he's not just on the prowl. If he's the kind of young man you'd like for a friend, he'll recognize and respect the standards you set up. If he doesn't respect them, then you don't—or would be very foolish to—want him, because nothing very happy would be likely to come out of it.

Pantry Shower

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
I have been invited to a pantry shower for a bride-to-be and would appreciate your giving me some suggestions as to what I can take with me.
C. A.

A most practical shower this, and it's fun and easy to choose gifts for it. Since undoubtedly the majority of the tinned goods will be used "for two," I suggest you take a group of small tins or jars or bottles: perhaps a collection of jams and jellies and marmalades, in a decorative box or basket; perhaps two or three tins of chicken, or a jar of smoked turkey; containers of maple syrup and honey; two or three bottles of dessert sauces; two or three cans of preserved fruits; old standbys, such as corned beef hash, baked beans, spaghetti in tomato sauce; a group of small tins of hors d'oeuvres, such as anchovies; tins or jars of nuts of various kinds; jars of olives, green, ripe, stuffed; or a group of jars of various kinds of herbs, for salads, sauces, and so forth.

Hostess Shouldn't Outshine Her Guests

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
I will be 16 years old next month, and I am planning an informal dinner dance (an evening party) for a group of 20 of my friends. Would it be proper for me to wear an evening gown when the guests will be dressed informally? M. B.

No. When you tell your guests that it is to be an informal party and that therefore you are expecting them to wear informal dress, it would be most ungraciously inappropriate for you to appear in an evening dress. If the girls own long dance-dresses, why not let them wear them to your party? Then you could wear your dance-dress.

WHITE SHOE TROUBLE? You like your little girl's white shoes, but others who must try to clean the polish spots from clothing and furniture don't share your enthusiasm. Teach her to keep her feet off the furniture.

Fireplace Victim Rites Tomorrow

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the First Baptist Church, Belmont, for Alan Williamson, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie W. Williamson, Oak ave., whose body was found yesterday wedged in a neighbor's backyard fireplace.

The boy disappeared Wednesday afternoon after leaving his home to search for his pet dog, Pete, and more than 100 volunteers joined members of the Belmont police department in the search.

It is believed the little victim, while looking for his dog, paused to investigate the fireplace, became wedged in the chimney and suffocated.

Dick Powell as Tough Boy

"Cornered," now unreeling a violent if scarcely cerebral tale of intrigue on the RKO-Boston screen, finds ex-crooner Dick Powell in another move-over-Bogie role.

You may question the logic of the former RCAF pilot's one-track, one-man pursuit over land, sea and air of the escaped Vichy collaborationist responsible for his patriotic French bride's death. You will have no doubts . . . it is virtually a certainty . . . of the excellence of Powell's stunning impersonation of this righteous killer.

In this and his previous screen breakaway from pretty-boy crooning, "Murder, My Sweet," Powell proves beyond shadow of a doubt that the tough-boy racket is for him.

Powell has excellent support, notably from Walter Slezak as a bland informer around whose over-upholstered carcass the intrigue eddies. Micheline Cheirel, as the Vichyite's pseudo-wife, and Nina Vale, as another glamorous member of the breed; Morris Carnovsky, Luther Adler and Jack LaRue are superb.

Bobby Sherwood and his orchestra, voted the GIs' favorite band, head the stage show. They opened with "Elks' Parade" and closed with "Cottontail" and from start to finish it was obvious the customers seconded the GIs' poll.

'The Lost Weekend' Stars In Academy Award Race

The "picture you can't make," now in its 11th record-shattering week in Manhattan, where the film critics voted it the year's best, is now to be caught on the Metropolitan screen.

It would be, of course, "The Lost Weekend," which is an unabridged, painfully vivid report of a chronic "drunk's" four-day "binge."

Theater officials guessed that yesterday's opening-day business will top all house records, and that the local engagement attendance and gross figures should be something for the time capsule.

Sencational may be the precise word for the amazing business the picture is doing elsewhere and here. Definitely, it is not the adjective for this strikingly truthful, unhoked-up exposition of a psychopathic "drunk," whom Ray Milland brings to the screen with torturing realism.

But this is no one man's show. Charles Brackett, producer, and Billy Wilder, director, who collaborated on the script, have fashioned from Charles R. Jackson's grimly graphic novel of the same name an arresting, thought-provoking documentary that is a cinema classic.

For their combined contributions to the creation of one of the screen's most brilliantly unconventional, agonizingly realistic character studies, Milland, Brackett and Wilder are under consideration for Academy Award honors.

No single ugly, humiliating, tormenting detail is omitted from this searching survey of a "dipso's" bottle-fighting bout. His "illness" is explained as a frustrated ambition to write, which does not seem a valid enough reason for his alcoholic problem.

The shock scene of the picture is the one in which Milland's inflamed subconscious mind envisions a non-existent mouse and bat, screaming and screeching grotesquely, Almost paralleling it is the Bellevue Hospital alcoholic ward sequence, in which the wailings and shouting of other delirium tremens patients are magnified to approximate the way they must sound to the nerve-shot, frenzied Milland.

In this latter scene, the brutish callousness of the attendant would seem to be an archaic touch in this otherwise scientifically accurate approach to the "dipso" problem. Also, there is a hopeful note at this bitter picture's end which left this beholder unconvinced.

But these are minor items in a masterpiece of cinematic realism, for which all credit goes to Paramount's wonderful Evers-to-Tinker-to-Chance team.—P. D.

'Little Brown Jug' Delights First Nighters

By PEGGY DOYLE

Percy Kilbride's down-Mainer . . . who'd rather be caught red-handed at murder than saying a bad word . . . stole the show last night at the Shubert-Copley.

This first-rate stage and screen actor is the unstarred star of Courtney Burr's production of the new Marie Baumer play, "Little Brown Jug," which had its initial showing here.

Considerable speed-up in direction and additional comedy touches are indicated. There is every certainty that Mr. Burr has something for the boys and girls in "Little Brown Jug," once these improvements are made.

It should be no surprise to learn that Miss Baumer wrote her play for Mr. Kilbride, for the part is custom-tailored to his strictly specialized talents. He blends a naively bland hired-man with a killer.

It is sheer genius the way Mr. Kilbride contrives to protect this weirdly contradictory character. He is at once a simple, old fellow who at long last has found a home and a fanatical, murderous, old fool who would use any means including killing in the interests of loyalty.

Victims of his perverted sense of loyalty are the mother and daughter Katharine Alexander and Marjorie Lord portray. It is as a result of the sudden death of the latter's bibulous, cruel husband, in which Miss Alexander is innocently involved, that the hired man becomes a member of the household.

Arthur Margetson as brother of the dead man, using a bit of strategy and psychology, manages to persuade the dominating handy-man, named Ira, that he will be happier . . . and safer . . . out of this house.

Miss Alexander, recently seen as Shirley Temple's mother in the film version of "Kiss and Tell," and in the late Broadway production, "Mr. Cooper's Left Hand," is sweetly serious and seriously good as Miss Lord's mother.

Miss Lord is pleasing as the newly-widowed Carol Barlow who is faced with the secret and bitter knowledge that her mother has perjured herself to spare her from the embarrassment of publicity.

Ronald Alexander's Henry Barlow is adequate, and Margetson's superb portrayal of the dead man's brother has authority and restraint. Frieda Altman's maid, Lydia, is sharp and amusing.

But, above all, Miss Baumer's sharply acute delineation of her leading character is not to be overlooked.

Right-Handed Williams Signs Red Sox Contract

By HERB FINNEGAN

Make way for the "Right-Handed Ted Williams," you Red Sox. Move over on the bench and let Sam Mele take a seat? Remember Sam? Remember the New York kid who hung around Fenway Park four days toward the fag end of the '42 season and had Ted Williams asking him how he hit all those drives over the fence? Well, he's back after a long tenure in the service, and he's just signed a Red Sox contract. And it's being bruited about that he got a $30,000 bonus for so doing.

Big money, yes. But Dick Wakefield already has begun to pay the Tigers dividends for their $50,000 investment in him, and this kid was as promising as a collegian as Wakefield. Here's some further dope on him.

He stands 6-1, weighs 185, bats and throws right-handed. He is a native of Astoria, L. I. After graduating from Bryant High school he matriculated at New York U. Playing the outfield there, he batted .405 in 1941, .396 in 1942.

He played in the Northern League with Dave Ferriss in '41. He was a little bit of all right.

He really blossomed in the service. Enlisting in the Marines (V-12) he played 16 games for Red Rolfe's Yale team in '43 before shipping on the USS Ranger. He didn't touch a ball again until the summer of '44.

Then he landed at Pearl Harbor amidst a group of standouts that included Eddie Pellagrini, Johnny Lucadello, Walt Masterson, Johnny Mize and Barney McCoskey.

They played three games a week for seven months, and Master Mele batted a robust .356 to lead the league. Not only that but he was voted the Most Valuable Player in the league. And isn't that something for a lad of 23 who never played a game of big league ball?

All that is in the official records of the Red Sox, put there by Bill (Football) McCarthy who doubles as New York U. baseball coach.

"He's footsey," McCarthy added. "He played on the NYU basketball team when it won 17, lost 4. He can throw and he can hit, and he hits that long ball the customers love. He'll be the third man in the Sox outfield this season with Williams and Di Maggio, and he'll bolster the club's spirit as Ferriss did last year."

Shy Sam Mele merely smiled. "It's great to get a chance to play big league ball," he said. "That's all I've dreamed about since I was a kid, and until I received my discharge last Friday, the chance seemed far away. But wait'll you see my young brother Emil. He's still in the service. But he's only 21 and he's the best ball player in the family. He's a big league shortstop right now." Mele, incidentally, is a nephew of Tony Cuccinello.

AL FLAIR—Al Flair signed his Red Sox contract today and thus began Rudy York's troubles in his bid for the first base spot. The 6-4 New Orleans lad acts and hits like Bill Terry (.401) used to hit for the New York Giants. He was with Baltimore in '41, his last season in organized ball.

"He'll beat out York for the job," contended Tommy McHugh, former Sox batboy who saw Flair in the Pacific theater. There were many at Sarasota in '41 who thought Flair should have had Foxx's job.

SAM MELE INTERVIEWED BY HERB FINNEGAN

HOLDOUTS — Still unsigned and thus ineligible to report at Sarasota are Rudy York, Bobby Doerr, George Metkovich, Glenn Russell, Bob Garbark, Emmett O'Neill, Fred Walters and Jack Tobin . . . Metkovich, Tobin and O'Neill may not even come East. They're all Californians, all fun-lovers, and would rather play on the Coast than at Louisville . . . Walters, who tossed up a job with the FBI to catch for the Sox last year and who wound up in Louisville, probably will retire . . . Joe Dobson received his discharge from the Army today and will report Feb. 25 at Sarasota.

Braves Start Training; Southworth Draws Kids

By BILL GRIMES

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla., Feb. 15—Under the watchful eye of their new manager, Billy Southworth, the Braves spring training got under way today at West Side Park.

The Braves began to check in here yesterday. They came from all sections of the country. After a long and tedious trip, the delegation from home pulled into the FEC station last night four hours late. Sibby Sisti, Billy Judges, Skippy Roberge, Bob Ayotte, Ben Cardoni, Tim Trimer and Eddie Musial arrived with the Boston party.

Eddie Musial, brother of Stan of Cardinal fame, has been signed to an Indianapolis contract. Although he has been in the Army for two years, Eddie is only 20 years old and looks like a ball player. His services were sought by a number of major league clubs, including the Yankees.

"What will Musial's status be if he shows to better advantage than some of your outfielders?" we asked General Manager John Quinn.

"In that case, I'll telephone our American Association Farm Club and inform Donie Bush that we are going to keep him with the Braves," replied the g. m.

Musial has never played in organized ball. But, according to scouts' reports and big brother Stan, Eddie is a most promising recruit. He's a trim, slightly built youngster with all the appearances of a speed merchant and, like his brother, is left handed "all the way."

"Before we went after Southworth," stated President Lou Perini, shortly after Musial reported to him, "we were satisfied that he was the one man who could make the Braves a worthwhile ball club.

"But I wasn't aware of one of Billy's greatest assets. During the years he piloted the Cards, Billy made a great reputation for himself among the kids of this country. He also registered very favorably with his players.

"Already two younger brothers of former Card stars, Sam Cooper and Eddie Musial, have insisted on starting under Southworth. There'll be many others, I trust, with similar ideas. And we are in a position to place them in their proper classifications."

Southworth has picked up another ex-Card, Bob Keely, a third-string catcher, recently released. Southworth wants six catchers in camp, for he intends to give his charges plenty of batting practice.

The Braves will hold two practice sessions daily. After three or four days, they'll be driven at top speed for a couple of weeks and then allowed to ease off to get ready for the long and strenuous series of practice games.

Kelley Assistant Coach at Cornell

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 15 (INS)—Capt. Alva E. Kelley, Jr., inspection and athletic officer at the Watervliet Arsenal, was appointed assstant football coach today at Cornell University. He will report for duty April 1.

Kelley was an end on the unbeaten Big Red team of 1939 and a year later was named on four All-America teams.

May Shift Montreal Ice Franchise to Philadelphia

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (INS)—Ien Peto today applied for a National Hockey League franchise for Philadelphia. His application was taken under advisement by the league governors.

The governors, meeting for the second day, said that they would give the application, which would mean the shifting of the franchise of the defunct Montreal Maroons to Philadelphia, full consideration. They refused to say when a decision will be reached.

Peto, a Canadian industrialist and once a director of the Montreal Canadiens, said he was satisfied with the way the application is being handled. He said: "I am, however, going ahead with construction of an arena, seating 20,000 persons, on the site of Baker Bowl, where the Phillies used to play ball."

Bruins Riding On Top of Loop

By FRED HOEY

Sole occupant of first place in the National Hockey League race as a result of their 2 to 2 tie last night in New York, the Bruins now look forward to their return engagement with the Rangers here tomorrow night at which time they should, by all the laws of hockey percentages, add two more points to their present meagre lead.

Other happy news emanating from New York was the NHL's face-saving decision to reinstate Babe Pratt of the Maple Leafs who had been suspended following the charge that he had gambled on hockey.

The vital point was brought out that Pratt did not bet against his own team. But the board of governors went on record as prohibiting gambling of any nature by players, the violation of which would result in immediate suspension.

The fortunes of the Bruins are of more concern than the player gambling charge in this betting crazed town.

A glance at the schedule of the forthcoming games would seem to favor the Bruins. They play a return game with the Rangers here tomorrow night and then lay off for their big test with the Hawks in Chicago next Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the Hawks are likely to fatten up in a home-and-home series with Detroit. Then, too, the Canadiens have three fairly soft touches with Toronto, Rangers and Detroit.

Olympic Site Undecided

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP)—White City Stadium, scene of the 1908 Olympics, rather than Wembley Stadium, was prominently mentioned in sports circles today as the likely site of the 1948 games which were awarded to London yesterday.

White City Stadium is located at suburban Shepherds Bush, four miles west of Hyde Park. Its seating capacity can be increased to 100,000.

Not only is the actual site for the 1948 games still a matter of discussion but the question of participant countries also is being debated.

Although the participants are invited by the International Olympic committee, William May Garland, senior member of the U. S. Olympic committee, said at Los Angeles he felt that Germany and Japan would not receive a bid.

"There still is doubt as to the status of Italy but we expect one of the greatest international representations in the history of the games," said Garland.

"Russia will compete for the first time and the South American countries are planning to send large teams."

A meeting of the international Olympic committee at Lausanne, Switzerland, in September, will determine what nations will compete. Actual organization of the teams in the various countries cannot start under the present Olympic law until 18 months before the games.

Bolden Bopped; Loses $1600

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15 (AP)—The State Athletic Commission today barred Light Heavyweight Nate Bolden of Chicago from fighting in Pennsylvania for "failure to give forth his best efforts" last Monday when he was knocked out by Billy Fox of Philadelphia in two rounds.

The commission also forfeited Bolden's $1600 purse, which was held up after the bout.

Chairman Leon L. Rains, who leveled a "quitting" charge at Bolden for his Philadelphia Arena performance, issued this statement:

"Not only will Bolden never be permitted to box in this State for the life of the commission, but other state athletic commissions will be asked for the good of boxing to co-operate in not permitting this Nate Bolden to box in their respective states.

"Also, after a thorough investigation, Billy Fox was absolved of any wrongdoing. He did his best and was in no way involved. In this finding all commission officials concur."

Rindge, Newton Tops School Ice Contests

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Schoolboy hockey, bombarded with all-star selections, and track, virtually cleared off the indoor schedule except in the intown ranks, will be sharing the spotlight tomorrow with four ice sessions and the Navy-NEAAAU meet saluting the start of the annual February holidays.

The hockey leagues will be back at their regular stands in closing out their schedules with attention centered on the outcome of the GBI play-offs at the Boston Garden.

Rindge Tech, one point in front, will be facing Newton in the big game while Medford, runner-up, will tangle with Arlington. The Technicians will have to win this one to erase any doubt as to the new champion (to qualify for the Metropolitan round-robin) and off the form they've displayed, they should step out front. Len Gagnon and Dick Briand on the first line are far ahead of any Newton combination.

At the Arena, the Bay State Leaguers will be holding a four game consolation series. Needham, with the title safely tucked away on the strength of its 'Win' column totals, will be out merely to protect its undefeated record against Waltham — and Will Roman and Walt Sabroski should take care of that point. The Watch City crew, in turning the tables, could move into the awkward position of being the only unbeaten club in schoolboy ranks —but without a title.

The Navy meet at the Fargo Receiving Hall (1:30) will be attracting 310—individual entries from 39—high schools in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island with B. C. High topping the list with 72 boys. The schoolboys will be competing in the 60-yard dash; 440 and 880-yard runs and a special mile affair. Director Capt. A. M. Van Eaton and Lt. Com. Ralph Colson have lined up most of the top schoolboy stars.

In the 60-yard dash, the four place winners in both A and B classes of the State meet will be competing. This will place local titlists, John Buckley, Needham, and Al Bartolucci, Somerville, against such New England standouts as Ed Bagdanovich, LaSalle; Paul Donavan, LaSalle; Art Rasmussen, Barrington, R. I.; Bob Farrell, Boston English 300-yarder, and Dave Neville, Brandeis Vocational star.

The 440 will include Jack Abrams, and Charlie Wojcik, Lowell High; Dave Krivitsky, Worcester Academy and former standout at Boston English; Woody Crowther, Newton; Dick Curran, Boston Latin; Dick Palmiere, East Boston, and Joe O'Donnell, LaSalle. There'll be 66 entries in this field.

Tom Kirwan, Winchester; Carl Joyce, Commerce; George Pope, Newton, and Al Collins, Rindge Tech, will top the local boys in the 880. They'll be matched against a pair of out-of-state headliners—George Turner, Cranston, R. I., and John Alling, New Haven, Ct.

Several of the brighter young fistic prospects campaigning throughout New England will be seen in supporting bouts to the 10-round collision between Buddy Hayes, South End, and Jack "Spider" Armstrong, Boston, next Monday night at Mechanics Building. The semi-final, slated for eight rounds, will bring together Gene LeBlanc, Fall River lightweight who has won 21 out of 23 professional bouts, and Joey Bagnato, Toronto.

Light-heavyweights Mike Gagne, Spencer, and Jim McKeagney, Quincy, who is unbeaten as a professional, meet in a six.

In another six it will be Joe Terryo, Toronto, against Benny Del Galdo, Providence, who was former R. I. State amateur 135-pound champion and who has won 11 out of 12 pro starts.

In the opening four, Joey Palazzo, Roxbury, and Billy Smith, Medford, are matched.

Franconia Agog Over Ski Classic

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

FRANCONIA, N. H., Feb. 15—Despite unexpected rains and a warm spell which sent temperatures soaring throughout New England while skiers' hopes fell, sufficient cover still remains on the huge Mittersill Slope to permit the running of the Walter Foley Memorial ski race, tomorrow and Sunday.

This little town, one of the East's foremost Scnuss centers, is all agog over the impending slalom, and a field of well over one hundred skiers is ready to compete, for the four trophies and eight medals.

The fair sex will face the starters flag tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 when Bernard Herbert, director of the Mittersill Club ski area will send the first feminine racer on her way down the course.

Ed Blood, twice member of the U. S. Olympic ski team and former star and coach of N. H. U., will set the course. He will also act as a forerunner for this event, together with Mrs. Hans Thorner and Mrs. Paul Lamere.

Among the latest girls to file entries are Peggy Pratt and Beverly Butler of Chestnut Hill, Pamela Trenor, Bradford Junior College, Susan Byers, Milton, and six representatives from St. Mary's-in-the-Mountains, a Littleton, N. H., girls school.

One More Game For Purple Five

Doggie Julian took off for his Pennsylvanian home this morning for a well-deserved rest, and his Holy Cross basketball team was back in Worcester with strict instructions not to handle a ball again until March 5.

"We, we're not through yet," said Doggie at the station. "I thought and I was hoping the Garden game with BC would be the end, but we've been asked to play Kings Point at Jamaica, L. I., on March 9 in some school benefit and we acceded."

Doggie's been on the go since July 9. First it was football practice, then a short term of basketball practice, then regular football practice climaxed with the Orange Bowl game, and then the regular basketball season.

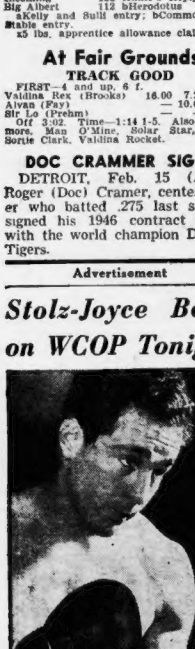
Stolz-Joyce Bout on WCOP Tonight



Willie Joyce, Gary, Indiana, and Allie Stolz (above), of Newark—clash at Madison Square Garden tonight in a re-match that should be a thriller. The air fans will hear the bout over ABC Stations.

Fight fans saw a great exhibition of speed and skill when the nifty Newarker shaded Joyce after ten sparkling rounds at the Garden last fall. A scientific boxer and a sharp puncher, Stolz showed his most brilliant form. His one-two hitting was near perfection. Joyce, also, was in top form.

Willie possesses the most potent left hand in the lightweight class. He jabs and hooks equally well and has never been counted out.

Enjoy the excitement, blow-by-blow, on Gillette's Cavalcade of Sports over American Broadcasting Co. and WCOP (1150 on your dial) at 10 p. m.

Olympics Play Falcons Here

Stung by their fourth loss of the year at the hands of Philadelphia, the Olympics will be sniping for revenge at the Garden tonight.

The Falcons continue to battle the Pics on nearly even terms despite the difference in the league standing of the two rivals. On their last visit here, the Falcons took a 9-3 pasting in the first game, but came back the next day to win, 2-1. Last Wednesday, they again defeated the Pics, 6-5, in Philadelphia.

There is a strong possibility that Ty Andersen will be back at the points against the Falcons. With Andersen available, Clare Martin will move to the third line wing. Fishy Dumond will pivot the trio, while Fernie Flamon patrols the other wing.
